Medicines Exempted from Tax

A DIRECTION BY CUSTOMS AND EXCISE

THE Customs and Excise have issued Purchase Tax (No. 5) Direction, 1968, which temporarily exempts further "essential" drugs and medicines from tax as from December 18. The items affected are given below together with the proprietary product in square brackets.

Head II. Added are nifuratel [Magmilor] and 3,5-Dinitro-N-(5-nitrofurfurylideneamino) salicylamide mixed with polysorbate 80. Also the entry relating to "Cetyldimethylbenzylammonium chloride mixed with . . ." is amended to read, "Cetyldimethylbenzylammonium chloride mixed with one of the following substances, that is to say, amethocaine hydrochloride, benzocaine or choline salicylate." [Teeljel; Bonjella.]

Head III. Added is *N*¹-Acetyl-4'-nitrophenylsulphanilamide with dibutyltin dilaurate and with N,N'-di-(3-nitrobenzenesulphonyl) ethylenediamine prepared for veterinary use. Also the sub-paragraph (d) of the entry relating to "any antimicrobial substance being: . . ." is amended to "(d) any substance within paragraph (a), (b) or (c) above with one or more of the following substances, that is to say, cobalt salts, NN'-di-(4-amino-2-methyl-6-quinolyl) urea hydrochloride, p-hydroxybenzoic esters, kaolin, quaternary ammonium bactericides, salicyl alcohol, cloponone and myralact;" [Ginetris.]

Board after consulting those Government departments with responsibilities in that area. It is addressed specifically to "those responsible for retail prices" and is intended to give broad rather than detailed guidance on the subject. The official shoppers' conversion table given in an earlier booklet (see C. & D., June 1, p. 483), is repeated. The table using the new half-penny which up to one shilling rounds up as many odd penny amounts as it rounds down should, if applied consistently to a number of evenly distributed amounts, balance out buyers' and sellers' gains. The Board's view is that manufacturers and retailers should not be obliged by law to apply this table in re-pricing their goods but that they should be expected to use it wherever possible. The Board say that the need is now becoming urgent to study pricing structures involving the half-penny, which ceases to be legal tender on August 1, 1969.

Import Duties

NEW TEMPORARY EXEMPTION ORDER

THE Import Duties (Temporary Exemptions) (No. 6) Order, 1968 (published as S.I. No. 1948), effective January 1, 1969, provides that the goods (mainly chemicals) listed shall be exempt, or shall continue to be exempt, from import duty until January 1, 1970, except for items for which an earlier day is specified. Some goods, the exemption of which is continued by the Order, appear under a description which has been modified to make it specifically clear that the exemption relates only to the normal isomer of the substance concerned.

Training Export Staff

OFTEN "HAPHAZARD" SAYS REPORT

A REPORT by the Central Training Council ("Training of Export Staff," H.M. Stationery Office, price 6s. 6d.), finds that in far too many companies and export houses, the export staff were given no planned instruction and acquired such information as they possessed in a haphazard manner in the course of doing their jobs. There was an important role for in-company training, properly organised; but too many firms left their staff to pick up their knowledge by chance or through the goodwill or self-interest of senior staff. The

Decimal Board Guidance

"OVERALL INCREASE UNNECESSARY"

THE change to decimal currency in 1971 need not — and should not — lead to an overall increase in the prices of goods and services according to the Decimal Currency Board in a booklet "Points for Businessmen" published by H.M. Stationery Office, price one shilling, on December 9. The booklet contains a note on the effect of decimal currency on prices prepared by the provision of external courses for exporters also presented a depressing picture. "A handful of colleges in both the public and private sector put on imaginative courses of considerable merit," says the report, "but, in general, the overall picture is one of apathy, with few courses and these ill-attended. The present gulf between industry and the educational services in this field is one of many pressing problems." A number of recommendations are made including the introduction of a uniform national system of export courses and qualifications.

Narcotics

ESTIMATES FOR 1968

REVISED estimated United Kingdom requirements for narcotics in 1968 have been submitted to the International Narcotics Control Board. Details are given in the third supplement, Estimated World Requirements of Narcotic Drugs in 1968 (U.N. publication, Sale No.: E.F.S.69.X1.3) are as follows. The quantities are in kilos except as otherwise stated:— Alphamethadol 1 gm., cannabis 339,844, coca leaf 10, cocaine 319,162, codeine 14,760, dextromoramide 43,132, diethylthiambutene 10, dihydrocodeine 1,434,592, dihydromorphine 125 gm., dihydromorphine dimethyl ether 25 gm., diphenoxylate 115,438, dipipanone 70, ethylmorphine 205, etorphine 5 gm., etorphine 3 methyl ether 500 gm., fentanyl 20 gm., heroin 76,715, hydrocodone 7,290, hydromorphone 210 gm., levorphanol 2, methadone 45, methadone-intermediate 250, morphine 16,655, morphine dimethyl ether 5 gm., norcodeine 1 gm., opium 245,500, oxycodone 19,389, oxymorphone 15 gm., pethidine 1,100, pethidine-intermediate-A 3,628,656, pethidine-intermediate-B 100 gm., pethidine-intermediate-C 144,760, phenazocine 4,228, phenoperidine 518 gm., pholcodine 1,638,102, thebacon 1,958 and thebaine 365,350.

Drug Testing

NEED FOR A "SECOND TIER"

A "SECOND-TIER" of testing procedures should be introduced for all new drugs intended for long-term administration, maintains Mr. P. Beaconsfield, working at the Royal Free Hospital, London, in a letter to the British Medical Journal (November 30). "The advent of oral contraceptives, compounds taken for non-therapeutic reasons and the duration of whose use is unlimited, calls for a complete change in our assessment of what constitutes safety in a drug," he writes. "It is understandable that the long-term consequences of oral contraceptives in humans are not known, but it is inexcusable that they are not known in animals." Mr. Beaconsfield suggests that such drugs should satisfy the following criteria before being endorsed for clinical trial:— that their effects on the cells of the vital organs are within normal physiological limits and the cell architecture is not impaired; that any changes they cause are not cumulative and are reversible on discontinuation of the compounds, and that they have no cytogenetic effects,

Strathclyde University

PHARMACEUTICAL RESEARCH AWARDS

THE department of pharmaceutical chemistry of Strathclyde University has recently received a number of grants in aid of research. They include one from the Medical Research Council to Drs. F. Fish and B. Caddy to study the application of capillary column gas chromatography to problems of drug analysis in humans. Dr. R. T. Parfitt has also received a grant of £3,600 from the Medical Research Council to promote studies of the chemical and physico-chemical properties of benzomorphan narcotic analgesics. The Wellcome Trust has approved a grant of £23,000 towards the purchase of a spectropolarimeter, which will be on permanent loan to the department for work on the stereochemistry of drug molecules, and studies of their interactions with biological systems, to be carried out under the direction of Professor J. B. Stenlake and Dr. G. C. Wood.

Photographic Equipment

ONE-FIFTH UP ON SECOND QUARTER

THE total value of manufacturers' deliveries of photographic equipment was £33,823,000 in the second quarter of the year, an increase of 21 per cent. over the same quarter in 1967, according to the Board of Trade's Business Monitor. The report also mentions that both home and export markets shared in the increase, rising by 16 and 30 per cent. respectively. On the home market the only large category to show any considerable increase, apart from sensitised materials which maintained their usual upward trend, was "other" photographic apparatus which rose by about a third. Deliveries of photographic cameras and all types of projectors were well down. Exports of sensitised materials were again well up on 1967.

Chemical Industries

TRAINING BOARD GRANTS CHANGES

THE December bulletin of the Chemical and Allied Products Industry Training Board states that over the three months since the grants scheme was published (C. & D., August 24, p. 158), it has become apparent that the depreciation of premises grant plus the 50 per cent grant towards salaries of training staff have together proved a disproportionately low contribution towards the cost of in-company off-the-job courses, as compared with the 80 per cent. of fees allowable in the case of external courses. It has been decided therefore that company's should be assisted by a contribution towards the "fee-element" of in-company off-the-job courses where difficulty has arisen.

Sanaco Fellows

SEND-OFF TO 1968'S FIVE

SIX eminent overseas surgeons who have been studying in the United Kingdom during 1968 under the International Fellowship scheme of the Smith & Nephew group of companies were, at a cocktail party on December 10, given a send-off before their return home. They are Miss Sura Sab El Aish, Jordan; and Messrs. Edet Okon Nkposong, Nigeria; John Stanley Chappell, South Africa; Desmond Meiring Dall, South Africa; and Anand Kumar Anand, India, who was spokesman for all five in expressing appreciation for the company's help in their careers. The scheme has been running for seven years, during which time forty-two Fellowships have been awarded.

Chemists' Retail Sales

BOARD OF TRADE STATISTICS

THE index of retail sales by chemists and photographic goods dealers in October was 104 (average monthly sales in 1966=100), an increase of 9 per cent. over the same period a year earlier. Figures recently issued by the Board of Trade also reveal the following indices for the month:—

Independent retailers
Multiple retailers	106 (+10 per cent.)
Co-operative societies	90 (+4 per cent.)

The figures do not allow for contractors' receipts under the National Health Service.

New Licentiatees

CONFERRING CEREMONY IN DUBLIN

HISTORY was made at the College of Pharmacy, Dublin, on December 3 when for the first time Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kingston, who met in the college while students and married while studying, were conferred their licence and registered as pharmacists on the same day. Among others to receive licences were Mr. Owen I. Corrigan, son of Mr. H. P. Corrigan (a former president of the Society) and Miss Catherine P. Cashman (daughter of the immediate past president Mr. M. L. Cashman, while Mr. M. J. Duncan, one of the six licentiatees conferred in absentia, is the son of Mr. M. G. Durcan (managing director United Drug and Chemical Co., Ltd., Ballina).

The full list of the Society's new licentiatees is —

NEWS IN BRIEF

THE office of the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain will be closed from mid-day Tuesday, December 24 until 9 a.m. Monday, December 30.

THE Board of Trade assisted 5,100 British firms to participate at 243 specialised and general trade fairs in thirty-nine countries during 1968.

PAYMENT of a wage dividend for 1968 totalling £2.1 million is being made by Kodak, Ltd. The dividend is at the rate of 3.82 per cent. of employees' eligible earnings during the five years ending December 29.

FREIGHT Transport Association (F.T.A.) is the title for a new organisation formed by the merging of the National Traders' Traffic Association, Traders Co-ordinating Committee on Transport and Traders Road Transport Association on January 1, 1969.

PROFESSOR B. C. L. Weedon, D.Sc., Ph.D., F.R.I.C., has been appointed Chairman of the Food Additives and Contaminants Committee for a period of three years from December 1, in succession to Professor R. A. Morton, F.R.S., D.Sc., Sc.D., Ph.D., F.R.I.C.

STATUTORY Instrument No. 1881, effective December 5, revokes the existing fixed rates of import duty on photographic film and prepared film base and provides for drawback to be related to the duty paid on imported film base actually used in the exported goods.

THE six countries of the European Economic Community have agreed that from the beginning of next month there shall be restrictions on the right of any member to introduce import quotas without approval from the community as a whole. They will retain their freedom of action in dealing with Communist countries.

THE Joint Committee on the Use of Antibiotics in Animal Husbandry and Veterinary Medicine is hoping that all written evidence will be submitted to it by the end of December. Those who have not yet indicated their intention to submit evidence are asked to contact the secretary of the committee, Mr. D. C. Todd, Room 64, St. Andrew's House, Edinburgh, 1.

THE Treasury brought in regulations on December 18 preventing importers from borrowing money outside the sterling area to finance the six-month deposits required by the Customs and Excise authorities. Foreign exporters may still pay the import deposit direct, but exchange control permission will not be given for interest payments from the United Kingdom on those advances.

INSTRUCTIONS for the distribution of the British National Formulary 1968 (production of which is said to be behind schedule), have been sent to Executive Councils in Scotland by the Scottish Home and Health Department. Chemist contractors are to receive copies as soon as they become available during December; dispensing doctors should receive theirs in mid-January 1969 and prescribing doctors at the beginning of February. The Formulary is official from March 3, 1969.

TOPICAL REFLECTIONS

By Xrayser

Distribution

At the opening of a new distribution dépôt in Lancashire recently, the chairman of the company concerned spoke of his apprentice days about thirty-six years ago, when the wholesale service was a weekly delivery. He wondered, he said (p. 558), whether the wholesale service had not gone rather too far in providing the lavish delivery services the retailer received today. My own recollections go a little further back, though a difference of even ten years at that time did not materially alter the picture, for the range of services and goods offered did not vary to any marked degree. In the urban area in which I entered pharmacy there was even then a daily delivery from one or other of a number of wholesale and manufacturing houses. One vehicle was horse-drawn by a patient animal of almost twice my own age, and on a hot summer's day its driver did not scorn the delights of the local hostelry, confident in the knowledge that, if sleep overcame him on the homeward journey, man's faithful friend would return him unharmed to the stables. His open lorry was generally laden with hampers, bristling through every crevice with straw. At that time it was not difficult to anticipate one's requirements. The drugs in use were all arranged along the shelves in shop rounds, and one could see at a glance where stocks were running low. And though the service in general may not have been so lavish as that of the present time, it was almost unheard of to find a single item missing from the order, and rare indeed to find an error. Were it not that Christmas is almost upon us, I could enlarge on that, but this is no time for the airing of grievances, even if the order on occasion bears so little resemblance to that given that there is a lurking suspicion that the man along the road has got yours and you his. But I am grateful to the chairman of the company mentioned above, for it is many years since I spared a thought for the vanman and his horse—both, I feel sure, in other pastures for many a day.

A long career

You have, if you read this column with persevering tenacity, made the acquaintance of Dr. Habakkuk Marley, that doyen of medical practitioners in our community. He is, as I have mentioned, very much of the old school, and he would recognise instantly the contents of the hampers referred to above. He appears to be singularly indifferent to much of the medical literature of the day, making a selection of the newer treatments with discrimination. A visit from him at the pharmacy seldom goes unremarked. On a recent occasion he informed me that he had been reading of the increasing rôle of the pharmacist as an adviser on drugs. That, I said, was inevitable, for his training made him something of an expert. In deference to his position and his long experience I was careful not to say the expert. To my surprise he told me that he had, over a long period, regarded the pharmacist in that light, and in his earlier years he had frequently consulted my predecessors as to a suitable course of treatment. "There were occasions," he said, "when I was undecided in my own mind." (That surprised me—he has never shown indecision in his dealings with me.) "Sometimes," he went on, "I discussed the relative merits of bleeding the patient or prescribing a clyster. Should I use the lance, or make do with half-a-dozen leeches? Or should I blister behind the ear?" I listened in astonishment. I knew Old Marley was in the veteran class, but I had not quite thought of him as a contemporary of Withering or Lettsom. Door-nails and our Old Marley have nothing in common. He is indestructible—though I have sometimes wondered if his memory is all that it might be. I may be misjudging him.

A pressing invitation

He left me soon afterwards, with his customary seasonal references to somebody named Scrooge. I have not met him, but Marley says I am not at all like him, since he has always found a warm welcome at "The Acacias" on Christmas Day. I took the hint so delicately conveyed.

HEROIN ADDICTION

Home Office report for 1967

THE number of addicts known to have been using narcotic drugs during 1967 were again considerably higher than in the preceding year, the net increase being 380. One more, the most striking increase was in the number using heroin, either alone or in conjunction with other drugs. 1299 such addicts came to notice in 1967, an increase of 400 (44 per cent.) over the figure for 1966. That information is given in the Home Office report, for 1967, to the United Nations. The number of addicts below the age of twenty also increased, although at a lower rate than in immediately previous years.

Youngest Addicts

The youngest addicts who came to notice in 1967 were three aged fifteen; there were also 38 aged sixteen, 82 aged seventeen, 100 aged eighteen, and 172 aged nineteen years. The number of addicts between the ages of twenty and thirty-four increased by 348 (62 per cent.) over the corresponding figure for 1966. More than two-thirds of the group were under twenty-five years of age.

The great majority of addicts below the age of thirty-four were using heroin. Of the remainder, some were using methadone, which in most cases had been substituted for heroin in the course of treatment, and others morphine. Historically, heroin addiction had been almost entirely a Metropolitan phenomenon, with Birmingham the only other city with any significant number of heroin addicts. During 1967, however, pockets of addiction were discovered in smaller towns within easy reach of London. Initial studies left little doubt that proximity to London was a major factor leading to those local developments.

Heroin addicts in the United Kingdom had regularly also taken cocaine, if it was available, but despite the increase in heroin addiction in 1967 there was little change in the number of addicts using cocaine. "The evidence available indicates that the levelling off in use of cocaine was due to a number of doctors substituting intravenous methylamphetamine for cocaine."

The report states "As in previous years, the sale of drugs by addicts who were prescribed quantities in excess of their actual requirements, remained the chief source of illicit heroin and cocaine."

Altogether there were 725 addicts using heroin, 413 using heroin and cocaine, 102 heroin and methadone. 131 addicts used morphine; 94, pethidine alone; 93 methadone alone, 33 dextromoramide alone and 26 used dipipanone alone.

Thirty-one members of the medical profession were addicts as were 25 members of "allied groups". Those licensed by the Home Secretary to "possess, use, trade in or distribute" dangerous drugs included thirty analytical research workers, six brokers, fifty-three manufacturers of patent and special medicines, twenty-two nursing homes and 160 manufacturers and wholesalers.

INDUSTRIAL ESPIONAGE BILL

Not yet a major problem in Britain

MOVING in the House of Commons on December 13 that the Industrial Information Bill "be read a second time," SIR EDWARD BOYLE said that, though industrial spying was not yet a major problem in Britain, to suppose it was not a problem at all would be a mistake. According to a former president of Interpol, the subject was worrying authorities in a number of countries, and should clearly be considered in Britain in advance of its becoming a major issue. Sir Edward agreed that, under the Bill, the offence of misappropriation was widely defined, and said he was prepared to agree that the words "guilty intent" should be included.

His "second thoughts" on clause 3 were that it should include information about customers. Though he was not sure that the expression "lists of customers" was right, that was a detail that could be considered later. The Bill broke new ground and he did not claim the drafting was perfect.

MR. ERIC MOONMAN regarded it as vital that industrial information should be checked and safeguarded. Poor security and loss of information were estimated to be costing British industry up to £70 million a year, a figure that did not include sums at risk by reason of industrial espionage at times of mergers and take-overs.

SIR LONEL HEALD, whilst agreeing that the subject was of immense importance, did not believe that the Bill could pass into law as it stood. MR. EDMUND DELL (Minister of State, Board of Trade) pointed out that no representations had been made to his Department by the Confederation of British Industries. There was little evidence and there were few complaints, that industrial espionage was a serious problem. There were dangers of making the cure worse than the disease. The Bill's general conception of what should be provided was probably about right, but he believed it went too far in one or two respects. Considerable redrafting would, he suggested, be required, and the Government had not sufficiently clarified its mind on the subject to be able to help. For that reason the Government could not support the Bill. He hoped the fact that there had been a debate would bring forward people with knowledge, for the Government was prepared to discuss the problem.

MR. DUDLEY SMITH, after declaring his interest in a pharmaceutical organisation that was actively engaged in research, pointed out that, if a renegade employee were found guilty of misappropriation, it had few legal remedies, and action was badly needed. The debate was adjourned.

The illicit traffic in the United Kingdom continued to be predominantly concerned with cannabis, a significant feature was the increasing importance of cannabis resin in that traffic. The approximate total quantities of narcotic drugs seized by the authorities during 1967 were:—Opium 17 kilos; cannabis 152 kilos and cannabis resin 143 kilos. Relatively small quantities of morphine and other manufactured narcotics were seized. During the year under review there were 3414 prosecutions involving Dangerous Drugs of which 390 did not result in conviction.

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH

Council's report of 1967-68

THE foot-and-mouth disease virus has been demonstrated in milk, prior to the appearance of the disease in the cow by The Animal Virus Disease Research Institute, Pirbright, according to the Report of the Agricultural Research Council 1967-68. During the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in the autumn of 1967 the Institute examined the problem of the risk of spread of infection by bulk tankers carrying milk from farms where infection might exist although disease had not been diagnosed. It had been suspected on previous occasions that milk might play a part in the spread of the disease but that was the first time the virus had been isolated before the appearance of the disease in the cow. Some of the milk was in farm storage tanks and some had reached bulk carriers.

Other recent developments in research reported by the Agricultural Research Council includes the discovery of a new group of 4-substituted-2, 6-dinitrophenols active against apple mildew and other fungi. Several of the 4-(1'-cyclohexyl)- and 4-(1'-cyclopentyl)-2, 6-dinitrophenols were superior to Karathane even at concentrations as low as 2ppm.

Results obtained at the Unit of Reproductive Physiology and Biochemistry in controlled experiments indicate that androstenedione could exert a strong growth-promoting effect in bull calves, without being in the least androgenic. The report states that whether the anabolic effect could be used in beef production could only be found by means of field trials.

A trial para influenza III sheep vaccine reduced the excretion of virus from the nasal mucosa of lambs experimentally infected with virus of the parainfluenza type III. Further and extended vaccine trials were in hand.

Workers have confirmed the association between a herpes type virus and Marek's disease (fowl paralysis) and a gel diffusion test has been developed to detect, in chickens, antibodies associated with infection by that virus. It would be useful in epidemiological studies of the disease.

In a section of the report dealing with the Weed Research Organisation mention is made that about twenty-five new compounds were received each year for evaluation.

During 1967 some thirty herbicides were included in a field experiment to obtain data on relative persistence. An intensive study of the persistence of simazine in soil had demonstrated the major importance of soil moisture in governing rates of disappearance. Whilst no evidence had been found to suggest that soils regularly treated with simazine were able to detoxify the chemical more rapidly than previously untreated soils a long-term field experiment with M.C.P.A. had demonstrated conclusively that 3 lb. per acre, applied twice a year for five years had resulted in a soil able to break down the herbicide much more rapidly than soil not previously treated. That was thought to be due to the proliferation of micro-organisms capable of using M.C.P.A. as a nutrient. That "enrichment" phenomenon with

M.C.P.A. was well-known from laboratory studies, it seldom had been demonstrated to occur in the field. The enriched soil also had been found to be able to break down more rapidly 2,4-D and M.C.P.B., but not 2,4,5-T, nor the phenoxypropionic acid herbicides. Work is in hand to study the possible long-term effects of picloram and paraquat.

1969 Outlook for Chemists Not So Good

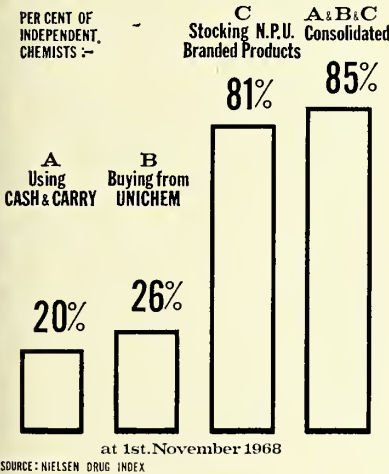

NIELSEN'S ANNUAL REVIEW OF PROSPECTS

CHEMISTS' prospects in 1969 look less promising than for some time past states the November-December issue of the Nielsen Researcher. In addition to factors affecting other retailers, chemists, it is said have also to face the effects of the re-imposition of prescription charges and the coming year may of prescriptions. Counter turnover had increased slightly faster than N.H.S. receipts during the period, halting the upward trend of N.H.S. share of total revenue at 38.1 per cent. All of those points compared with a dramatic increase in prescriptions and N.H.S. receipts in 1965 over 1964 in the comemphasises that independent chemists will have to use all means at their disposal to obtain merchandise on the best possible terms. It found that four out of five independents were stocking at least some N.P.U. branded products, about one in four was buying from Unichem and one out of five obtained see more medicines on sale in super-markets. However, results of a survey suggested that many chemists were trying to improve the efficiency of their buying and some had introduced self-selection. "For them the outlook may hold promise—for the remainder we believe there is no time to lose" states Mr. J. P. Napier (managing director, A. C. Nielsen Co., Ltd.) in a foreword.

September/October Clues

Results for September and October 1968 suggested a 5 per cent. increase in total turnover over 1968 similar to that for 1967 but below the average annual gain of 7 per cent. during the last five years. Counter sales showed a slower rate of growth than N.H.S. turnover, which despite prescription charges had achieved a new peak share of chemists receipts of 38.9 per cent. Comparison of turnover for the months July to October for 1968 and the preceding four years showed that the reimposition of prescription charges (in June) had halted the upward trend of prescriptions dispensed with a drop of 9 per cent. from the 1967 level. N.H.S. takings for the period had increased by 5 per cent. possibly owing to back payments and greater value some requirements from cash and carry wholesalers. In general fewer independents in the North (who relied more heavily on N.H.S. receipts) made use of those buying channels than did those in the South. Northern chemists could therefore, least afford to delay studying and adopting better buying methods.

Equally important, it is emphasised, is efficient selling. From answers, by a sample of chemists it was estimated that 50 per cent. of chemists had introduced self-selection techniques (40 per cent. in the North).

N.H.S. STATISTICS

IN BATH during August, 1968, 39,318 prescriptions (25,043 forms) were dispensed at a total cost of £24,927, an average of 152.16d. per prescription.

IN HALIFAX during August, 1968, contractors dispensed 39,554 prescriptions (26,524 forms). Total cost was £21,434, an average of 130.06d. per prescription.

Contractors in ENGLAND during August, 1968, dispensed 17,778,946 prescriptions (11,659,297 forms). Total cost was £10,664,880, an average of 143.97d. per prescription.

LOCAL authorities had been encouraged to inspect premises under the Offices, Shops and Railway Premises Act at a rate that would complete all initial general inspections during the first four years of its operation, that was by the end of 1968. That information was given by MR. ERNEST FERNYHOUGH (Under-secretary of State for Employment and Productivity) to MR. ESMOND WRIGHT, in a written answer, on December 10. Mr. Wright had indicated delays in inspection in the Glasgow area.

KH3 Capsules

MR. MR. EDMUND DELL (Minister of State, Board of Trade) said he was aware that the facts were broadly as stated but he did not think that a reference to the Board would be justified.

Trade Descriptions

MRS. WINIFRED EWING asked the President of the Board of Trade if he would introduce legislation specifically to prevent the misleading description involved when goods made in Scotland were marked "Made in England" and vice versa. MRS. GWYNETH DUNWOODY (Parliamentary Secretary) replied in the negative, in a written answer on December 11. She pointed out that the prohibition in the Trade Descriptions Act, 1968 already covered false indications as to the place of manufacture, production, processing or re-conditioning of any goods.

Toilet Preparations

MR. LEWIS CARTER-JONES asked the President of the Board of Trade if he was aware that certain cosmetics in general use were now "more expensive than precious metals" and would he consider submitting the price of certain cosmetics to the National Board of Prices and Incomes. MR. DELL, in a written answer on December 11 indicated that he was considering referring the prices to the Board and he had recently consulted the trade associations concerned on the terms of such a reference.

Drug Addicts

Since February 2,479 drug addicts had been notified to the Chief Medical Officer. MR. JAMES CALLAGHAN (Home Secretary) told MR. RAYMOND MAWBY on December 12. The figure represented a sharp increase on previous figures because the new regulations were designed to produce much more information about those who were addicted to, or who were taking manufactured narcotic drugs than was available before. Mr. Callaghan added "To this extent we have uncovered a great many more people. Perhaps although I would not want to be definite about this, we are now getting a grip of the total size of the problem."

Experiments on Animals

In spite of pressure from a number of questioners on December 12, MR. MERLYN REES refused to give any further information concerning proposed government action on the Littlewood report. There were a large number of organisations to be consulted and wide aspects involved. SIR KNOX CUNNINGHAM said that owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the replies he would raise the matter again.

Methedrine

MR. L. PAVITT asked the Secretary of State for Social Services if he would take steps to stop the issue of Methedrine in powder form. MR. ENNALS in a written reply on December 16 stated he was not aware that it was issued in that form. He would be glad to consider any relevant evidence that Mr. Pavitt might have. MR. PAVITT also asked if, in view of the "continuing danger of the use of Methedrine for unauthorised purposes, steps would be taken to prevent its use. Mr. ENNALS again in a written reply pointed out that the voluntary arrangements, introduced two months ago, initially for a year, were designed to prevent the misuse of Methedrine in injectable form. He added "We have no reason to think they are not proving generally effective".

Prescriptions

In written replies to DR. M. P. WINSTANLEY on December 16, Mr. Ennals indicated the average number of items per EC10 for prescriptions dispensed by chemists in England and Wales was 1.52 in the quarter beginning July 1. The comparable figure for the two months beginning April 1 was 1.58. Taking no account of income from prescription charges, the average total cost per prescription in the quarter beginning July 1 was 12s. The comparable figure for the two months beginning April 1 was 11s. 2d.

Influenza Vaccine

MR. MOONMAN and Mr. J. Barnett asked a number of questions concerning "Mao flu vaccine" and in a written reply on December 16 Mr. Ennals confirmed the Government's view on the specialist advice of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation of the Central and Scottish Health Services Councils that the routine use of vaccines could not be expected to make a significant contribution to the control of influenza outbreaks. It was the Government's policy, in co-operation with the pharmaceutical industry, to ensure the availability of suitable vaccine and its distribution to those who might require it in accordance with the advice of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation. Mr. Ennals continued: "As soon as the virus was isolated in July, the manufacturers began the production of a vaccine with all possible speed. Recent difficulties in meeting the stringent testing requirements have temporarily reduced production so that some 150,000 of the 900,000 doses expected to be distributed before the end of the year will not now be available until the New Year. Thereafter, however, it is hoped that substantial additional supplies, imported in bulk and now being tested, will become available to meet priority requirements." The Department had kept in touch with the manufacturers to ensure priority in supply to the groups suggested by the Joint Committee; the Department had also been in touch with the pharmaceutical profession. Co-operation of the manufacturers had been greatly appreciated. There was no reason to depart from the advice of the Joint Committee or to intervene in the existing arrangements for supply and distribution. Information about the geographical distribution of vaccine was not available.

LEGAL REPORTS

Conviction Quashed

ALLOWING an appeal by Barry L. Worsell, Hunters Hall Road, Dagenham, Essex, the Court of Appeal decided that "one-hundredth of one-sixth of a grain" of heroin was not sufficient to found a charge of unauthorised possession. Mr. Worsell was appealing against his conviction during March at North-East London Quarter Sessions on a count of unauthorised possession of a Dangerous Drug, contrary to regulation 9 of the Dangerous Drugs (No. 2) Regulations, 1964, and section 13 of the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1965. He was placed on probation for three years. According to a Times report, Lord Justice Salmon said that the appellant was charged with possessing "a few droplets of diamorphine." The tube in which the heroin was alleged to be contained appeared to be entirely empty. Nothing in the tube was visible to the eye, but under a microscope it was possible to discern a few droplets. As the tube was, in reality, empty, and the droplets in it were invisible to the naked eye and could not be measured or poured out, it was impossible to hold that the tube contained a drug. Whatever it did contain could not be sold or used. The defendant's conviction would be quashed.

COMPANY NEWS

Previous year's figures in parentheses

WILLIAM RANSOM & SON, LTD. — The Ordinary 2s. shares dealings in which commenced on December 12 opened at 11s 2½d. and closed at 13s. 1½d., after being placed at 9s. 3d.

ASPRO-NICHOLAS, LTD. Trading profit for the half-year to September 30 was £1,204,000 (against £1,020,000 in the same period of 1967). Profit for the full year should show improvement over 1967-68, states chairman Mr. M. A. Nicholas. An interim dividend of 10 per cent. is declared.

JEYES GROUP, LTD. — Through its subsidiary, Jeyes (Ireland), Ltd. the Group has acquired the total share capital and assets of Tissex & Co., Ltd., Dublin, who manufacture and market paper handkerchiefs and toilet rolls. Tissex will continue operating as a separate entity under its managing director, Mr. J. Coffey.

STANLEY WESTON GROUP, LTD.—The following appointments to the boards of subsidiary companies have been made as from January 1, 1969: R. WESTON (CHEMISTS), LTD.—Full directors, J. M. Pike, B.Pharm., M.P.S. (responsible for southern area); and D. M. Hibbard, M.P.S. (midlands); local directors, E. J. Ayling (general manager, photographic); W. P. Mallinson, M.P.S. (northern) and P. G. Marris, M.P.S. (southern). L. C. WHITTAKER & CO., LTD.—Local directors, D. S. Glover, M.P.S. (general manager) and A. Burkhill, A.C.C.A. (group chief accountant). Mr. J. M. Pike built up a in June 1966 when the company purchased the branches of W. H. Wilkins, Ltd. The acquisition of Philadelphia Jeyes and other businesses increased his responsibilities and he was appointed local director in July 1968. Mr. E. J. AYLING was employed as photographic salesman with a private chemist in a shop which was the third shop taken over in the Weston chain and has since had the task of building a photographic connection within the group. Mr. W. P. MALLINSON qualified as a pharmacist in 1955 after studying at Bradford. He joined Westons in 1966 as manager of the branch at Chapeltown, Sheffield, and was appointed area manager in July 1967. Mr. Mallinson is a former secretary of the Halifax Branch of the Pharmaceutical Society and is a member of the Sheffield Pharmaceutical Committee. Mr. P. G. MARRIS qualified in 1955 from Chelsea School of Pharmacy, joining E. C. Sleep in Portsmouth as branch manager in 1956. He later became general manager, with responsibilities for the retail shops and wholesale sections of E. C. Sleep's business. When Westons Chemists took over Sleep group in September 1967 Mr. Marris became southern area manager. Mr. D. S. GLOVER qualified from the Leicester School of Pharmacy in 1949. Following some years of experience in retail pharmacy he joined Harlow & Lawrence, Ltd., Chapeltown, Sheffield, where he was manager of a branch in Sheffield, before it was taken over by Westons Chemists. He joined R. Weston (Chemists) Ltd., just prior to its floatation as a public company. Mr. Glover became northern area manager in 1966, taking over the general management of L. C. Whittaker & Co., Ltd. (the wholesale division of Westons Chemists) when it transferred to its present address. Mr. A. BURKHILL joined the company as group accountant in April 1965.

PETER DIXON & SON (HOLDINGS), LTD.—In half-year ended September 28, group pre-tax profits rose to £520,000 (from £289,000 in the same 1967 period) largely due to increased income from associate, British Tissues, which rose to £214,000 (£104,000). Interim dividend is raised to 5 per cent. (3½ per cent.) to reduce disparity between it and the final.

ALFRED DUNHILL, LTD.—Through its French subsidiary, Alfred Dunhill S.A.F., the London pipe and tobacco company has purchased 67 per cent. of the issued capital of Les Parfums de Molyneux, Paris, for £100,000 cash based on the book value of net tangible assets. There has also been acquired from beneficial owners in the countries concerned, the Molyneux trade marks and trading rights in the Molyneux name outside France. The cash consideration is £150,000.

AGFA-GEVAERT GROUP.—Sales improved 5 per cent. to DM1,485 million, in the year ended September 30 but gross profit dropped to DM97.9m. (from DM104.2m.) mainly as a result of considerable increases in the price of silver. The net profit fell to DM14m. (from DM28.3m.) reflecting lower gross profits and an increase in write-offs to DM55.7m. (DM46.8m.). A total of DM13.8m. (DM17m.) was distributed to the parent companies. The group's basic capital was increased by DM23m. to DM358m.

HODDERS, LTD.—The board states that following the bid for the company by the Stanley Weston Group, Ltd., Weston have agreed to provide a cash alternative at par for the loan stock to be issued as part consideration for the capital of Hodders (see C. & D., November 23, p. 484). Hodders will recommend its holders to accept the offers from Weston, which it considers to be fair and reasonable. The latest date for acceptance will be extended and holders who have already accepted will be entitled to take the cash alternative.

BRITISH-AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. LTD.—The Group have agreed to purchase the Germaine Monteil chemical and perfumery business for U.S.$36,500,000. The purchase is being wholly financed by money borrowed from outside the United Kingdom. Germaine Monteil's main business is in the United States; it also operates in the United Kingdom and Europe, in Canada, Central and South America, South Africa and Australia. Mr. D. B. Starr (at present treasurer, Germaine Monteil's main business) is president of the United States company and the other Germaine Monteil companies will continue to operate under their existing managements. Distribution policies will not be changed.

RECKITT & COLMAN HOLDINGS, LTD.—With a few special exceptions the assets and undertakings of the group's United Kingdom subsidiaries are being transferred to Reckitt & Colman, Ltd., which will be the new name of the group after the next annual meeting. Production and sales in the U.K. will eventually be organised under five divisions, instead of as hitherto by companies. The divisions will be: Household, pharmaceutical, toiletries, food and industrial. The pharmaceutical division will gradually take over the pharmaceutical products of Reckitt & Sons and Roberts Croupine, Ltd., when the range of chemist and hospital lines has been expanded to require a separate marketing force. In the meantime that division will come under the household division, but with a separate committee.

INQUESTS

Slight Risks for Advances.—In modern therapeutic advances slight risks had to be taken, said the Enfield coroner at an inquest on December 9 when he recorded a verdict of death by misadventure on seventy-three-year-old Mrs. Jessie Vishgrod, 91 Osbaldeston Road, Stoke Newington, London, N.16, who died in the Prince of Wales Hospital, Tottenham on November 18. Deceased's son, Mr. Bennett Vaughan, said that his mother had suffered from arthritis for some time and had been prescribed tablets but she did not take them frequently. Dr. Simon Campbell-Smith (senior house officer, Prince of Wales Hospital) said that Mrs. Vishgrod had originally been admitted to the hospital on July 23, and was discharged on August 13. She was readmitted as an emergency case on September 8. Dr. Campbell-Smith said that Mrs. Vishgrod showed signs of anaemia and she told him that she had been taking tablets for her arthritis. Numerous blood and bone marrow tests were carried out and she had several blood transfusions. A further one had been planned for the day on which she died. Dr. David Bowen (pathologist) said that there was no evidence of pre-existing disease. Death had been caused by anaemia. He added that he had been asked to confirm the relationship between the patient's anaemia and the drug she had been taking for the treatment of her arthritis. He had ascertained that it was phenylbutazone, normally used in the treatment of the more painful forms of arthritis. The risk of anaemia in such cases was recognised but it was only occasionally that it affected the bone marrow in the way that it had done in the case of Mrs. Vishgrod. In summing up, the coroner said that unfortunately in modern medicine there were substances used which carried a slight risk. They were risks that were generally accepted as being the price that must be paid for modern therapeutic advances and it was only rarely anything went wrong.

Identity Cards Suggested.—At a Birmingham inquest on December 13, the coroner said "What concerns me is that some members of the medical profession can be hoodwinked into giving out tablets so easily." According to a Times report the coroner had heard that a doctor had prescribed 577 tablets for a drug addict in twenty-six days. The coroner suggested that addicts should be given identity cards on which doctors would have to enter the amount of drugs supplied. A verdict of accidental death was recorded on Mr. Geoffrey Thorne, of no fixed address, who was found dead at a house in Arthur Street, Small Heath, Birmingham. The report added that the prescriber had decided to cut down the amount of tablets week by week and had prescribed forty-five Durophat tablets and twelve Mandrax tablets. Three days later, Mr. Thorne returned, saying he had taken all the drugs. "I was very angry, but he again agreed to cut down the tablets and I gave him 20 Durophat tablets." Describing later visits, the doctor said that on one occasion Mr. Thorne told him all his tablets had been stolen. The doctor agreed with the coroner that to prescribe 577 tablets in twenty-six days was "quite frightening."

EXPANSION PROJECTS

NEW research laboratories are to be built for Aspro-Nicholas, Ltd., at the company's Bath Road, Slough, premises. The building costing £300,000 is expected to be completed by June 1969.

A PHTHALIC anhydride plant with a capacity of 70,000 tons per year is to be built for BP Chemicals (U.K.), Ltd., at its factory at Salt End, near Hull. The plant, costing £6 million, will come on stream in 1971 and will use ortho-xylene feedstock. Arrangements have been made with Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., for the conversion on its behalf of up to 35,000 tons a year of ortho-xylene to phthalic anhydride. It is expected that BP Chemicals (U.K.), Ltd., will acquire the interest now held by Chevron Chemical Co. in the Grange Chemicals, Ltd., phthalic anhydride plant now operating at Salt End. That plant, which has a capacity of 15,000 tons a year based on ortho-xylene feedstock, is expected to be shut down when the new plant comes on stream. Chevron will have no interest in the new plant being built.

TRADE NOTES

Shrink-wrapped Pack. — Cooper, McDougall & Robertson, Ltd., Berkhamsted, Herts, are now presenting their Medic-aire in a shrink-wrapped counter display unit with built-in showcard.

Change of Distribution. — From January 1, 1969, the products Arginine-sorbitol (Egic), lipiphysan, mannitol, sorbitol (Egic), and trophysan, formerly marketed by Sepe Pharmaceuticals, Ltd., and distributed by Martindale-Samore/Macarthy's, Ltd., for L'Equilibre Biologique, Amilly (Loiret), France, are being marketed and distributed by Selpharm Laboratories, Ltd., Percival House, Pinner Road, Harrow, Middlesex.

A Maker's Help on Trade Descriptions. — So that dealers are in no doubt what can be said or written about Ronson electrical products under the terms of the new Trade Descriptions Act, 1968, the electrical division of Ronson Products, Ltd., Leatherhead, Surrey, are distributing to all their stockists a set of four, pocket-size information cards which list the salient selling points of their products that are irrefutable. The cards deal respectively with Rio hairdryers; the shaver range; Escort portable hair-dryers; and the Ronson automatic toothbrush. Provided dealers stick to those points, Messrs. Ronson point out, they need have no fear of contravening the new Act.

An Italian Newcomer. — As a comparative newcomer to Great Britain, Pharmitalia, Kingmaker House, Barnet, Herts, introduce themselves as a company registered in Italy (as Societa Farmaceutici Italia Anonima per Azioni) and registered in the United Kingdom as Pharmitalia (U.K.), Ltd. Part of the Montecatini Edison group, a company that has amongst its interests dyestuffs, mining and extraction of ores, and the manufacture of a wide range of chemicals, Pharmitalia is actively engaged in research in pharmacology and related subjects. The intention is to make available to British subscribers and pharmacists those products of the Group's research that show evidence of being useful in medicine and pharmacy in the U.K.

Colours for Spring 1969. — Coty (England), Ltd., Great West Road, Brentford, Middlesex, are introducing in their range of coral lipsticks four new shades: Red Guard, Quiet Flame, Hanky Pinky, Sleek Peach, each at 7s. 4d.

Vitamin Foam Bath. — Arnold Christie Laboratories, Ltd., 317 Elephant and Castle Shopping Centre, London, S.E.1, are sole United Kingdom distributors of Italian-made Doktibad vitamin foam bath, claimed the second largest product of its type in Italy and now being introduced into France, Switzerland, Austria and Germany as well as into the United Kingdom.

A New Range of Toiletries. — Launched internationally just three months ago, the Adventure range of J. Grossmith & Sons, Ltd., 41 Piccadilly, London, W.1, is described as being "as fresh and vibrant as the excitement its name implies." Products in the range are attractively priced for the 16-44 age groups. Series includes three sizes of perfume (10s. 9d., 18s., 28s. 3d.) as well as Cologne (14s. 10d.), talcum powder (7s. 10d.), bubble bath oil (10s. 6d.), hand cream (7s. 5d.) and beauty soap (8s. 10d.).

New Arden Products. — Elizabeth Arden, Ltd., 25 Old Bond Street, London, W.1, notify that their soft eyeliner pencil (18s.) and automatic eye pencil (17s. 6d.) are now available in a new grey-brown shade. Two new nail lacquers are auburn light frost and auburn dark frost (13s.). In a new size (2½ in. round) the Invisible Veil pressed powder compact (18s. 9d.) has a tortoiseshell finish with classical Grecian Urn design embossed in gold. Invisible Veil diamond-cut compact (57s. 6d.) "looks as expensive as real gold"; it is sold empty and may be filled with loose powder or a pressed godeit. Invisible Veil florentine compact (66s. 6d.) has a central jewel design in blue or crystal stones and may be used for loose or pressed powder. Invisible Veil marguerites compact (66s. 6d.) has a jewelled flower-designed lid with a choice of blue or crystal stones.

MENLEY & JAMES LABORATORIES, LTD., Welwyn Garden City, Herts, Laryncol.

Rejuvenating Cream. — The Orlane Laboratory (distributors in Great Britain: Sirex, Ltd., Spirella House, Oxford Circus, London, W.1), claim that their new cream B21 is a "revolutionary rejuvenating cream." The product contains a new substance "G.A." patented by Messrs. Orlane and obtained by the action on an amino acid obtained from living organisms, of glutamic acid which is stated to be of prime importance in energy exchanges in the muscles, thus producing "a reaction never before attained — a spectacular strengthening of energy exchanges in the muscular tissue of the skin and a rejuvenation of protein in the cells." B21 (£21) also contains tyrothricin, a strengthening polyvalent serum, Royal jelly and shark oil. It is recommended for all types of skin from about the age of thirty onwards. The cream is applied nightly for two weeks every six or eight weeks.

SUNDRIES

Deep-dye Tissues. — Kimberly-Clark, Ltd., Larkfield, near Maidstone, Kent, have launched Kleenex Harlequin tissues (2s. 8d.) combining four rich new colours, bold gold, peacock blue, "hot" pink and white) in one man-size Harlequin pack featuring a multicolour adaptation of the already established chequered Kleenex for Men pack. The company expect the product to gain a substantial percentage of the total facial tissue market (value over £10m. annually) within a few months of its launch and point out that it is the first time that any facial tissue manufacturer in the United Kingdom has introduced "deep, strong" colours.

When the Grip is Impaired. — Of special value for patients who are unable to handle tableware with certainty is the range of Caleppio ware offered by Caleppio (U.K.), Ltd., Apsley, Hemel Hempstead, Herts. There are twenty-four pieces in the range including trays, plates, platters and a "multi-plate—so useful for a meal in bed." The tableware is manufactured from styrene laminate and has the feel of real wood but is resistant to shock, heat, stains and water and it can be washed in a dishwasher up to 75°C. (167°F.) Offered in a choice of either a teak or a light woodgrain finish.

MANUFACTURERS' ACTIVITIES

Computer Contract. — Polaroid (U.K.), Ltd., have signed a contract with Management Computing Services, Ltd., to undertake computer processing of marketing statistics for the full range of Polaroid sunglass products. The scheme will be an extension of a similar service that has been operated by M.C.S. for three years covering Polaroid Land cameras and films.

History Journal Free to Doctors. — A free quarterly journal for medical practitioners, "History of Medicine," is being sponsored by E. R. Squibb & Sons, Ltd., Regal House, Twickenham, Middlesex. Its aim is to provide a non-technical picture of medical history and biography and on ancillary subjects. The first edition includes features on the development of the new Charing Cross Hospital, the history of migraine and an article outlining some of the effects of "The Royal Malady on the Development of Psychiatry." The journal is published

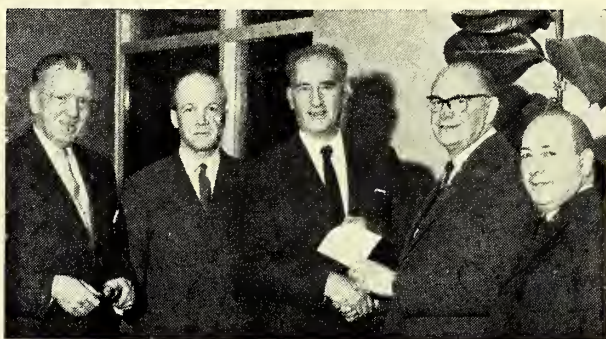

EQUIPMENT FOR MARATHON CONTESTANTS: Left, Rosemary Smith and co-driver Lucette Pointet check up on Polaroid model 210 automatic land cameras, one of the many items of equipment carried in each of six Ford Lotus Cortina team cars. Their car, No. 78, reached Bombay and was among those that embarked for the last leg in Australia. So was Ford Escort entry No. 78 whose drivers have been using on the way for hot coffee and soups, the Aladdin Dura-Clad vacuum flasks they are holding in the picture. From Fremantle to Sydney, with summer conditions prevailing, the flasks will carry instead cold drinks. The drivers are Martin Maudling, Jim Gavin and John Maclay.

Retirement After Fifty-one Years.—“A man with a great flair for ambassadorship” was how Mr. Tom Bates (Evans Medical, Ltd.) was described at the dinner given recently to mark his retirement after fifty-one years. As a representative for the company in the Midlands during the 1930's, Mr. Bates numbered many retail pharmacists there among his friends. Since that time he has been in close touch with hospital pharmacists and Government departments.

“On-line” Computer for Scientists.—New types of scientific experiment in human medicine and in control of insect pests are made possible by what is described as “the largest computer complex in the pharmaceutical industry” now being built up by the Wellcome Foundation, Ltd., which will be centred on its main factory in Dartford, Kent. Innovations include “on-line” working with direct access to the computer from the laboratory bench in the Wellcome Research Laboratories, Beckenham and the Cooper Technical Bureau, Berkhamsted and an additional computer which can handle a far greater volume of scientific calculation at speeds many times faster than those that are possible on the existing computer. Limited access to the computer from actual laboratories in Beckenham and Berkhamsted can already be carried out. A new ICL 1902A computer to be installed at the Wellcome Chemical Works, Dartford in May 1969 will be joined there in June by the firm's existing 1904 computer at present housed in the Euston Road. Both business and scientific work will be carried out at the new computer centre. The cost of a 1902A computer is around £200,000. Mr. K. Haselwood (manager of the Foundation's central computer division) says the new complex will spread the facilities much more widely within the group and accommodate eight or more scientists working at the very same moment. Dr. P. J. Goodford, (head of the department of biophysics and biochemistry) says the installation will be of particular value because it can be used to establish beforehand the best experimental design for what is sought.

EXPORT SUCCESS Medicines for Soviet Russia

AN increase of 85 per cent. in exports of medicine to Eastern Europe within twelve months is announced by Winthrop Products Co., Surbiton, Surrey. Biggest recent success has been with Negram which constituted the major part of a record order (value £153,000) from Soviet Russia earlier in the year.

An Appeal

SIR,—Now that the National Pharmaceutical Union typewriter has at last arrived, any outdated models that are in working order may be usefully employed by schools for educationally subnormal children—and in particular for those children who find difficulty in learning the shapes of letters. If anyone has such a machine and cannot place it, I would be pleased to hear.

Compulsory Orders

SIR,—I wonder how many of your readers are aware that the local authority pays the surveyors and legal charges of claimants under compulsory acquisitions. Pharmacists whose property is being compulsorily acquired are well advised to employ assessors well versed in the valuation of pharmaceutical businesses and premises, especially as their fees, which are conservative, are payable by the authority.

Customers Thanked

SIR,—Six months ago I was made redundant by my company, whom I had served in South Wales for four years. I was fortunate in securing another post in the same trade (perfumery and cosmetics) and in the same area. May I, through your columns, thank all the customers who have been so very helpful to me with my new company. May I take this opportunity of wishing them all a very happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Take Care of the Pence . . .

SIR,—Surely anyone who did the decimal currency sum (p. 539) and got an answer of 1'65½p. would only be out by one new penny and not one pound as stated. The figures of the sum are quite plainly fractions of a penny, although no such coins exist. Paragraph 15 of the Decimal Currency Board's pamphlet states “two methods of expression (for new pence) are clear and acceptable (a), (using Mr. Stedmere's figures), 62½p. and (b) £0'62½. The foreword of this excellent brochure states “Standard methods of expression will avoid confusion, lessen the risk of mistakes and help people to become accustomed to the new system more quickly.”

An Affront

SIR,—“Get Set” to transmit this shock to other retailers. Alberto Culver, Ltd., have contrived to keep their published price of this product to the same 7s. 11d. whilst increasing not only the tax but the cost as well. The sales director claims it is his prerogative to undermine the profit margins as he sees fit, and of course it is, but he has absolutely no authority to forego adding the tax to the listed price, and thereby increasing the suggested retail price. If every manufacturer were to indulge in this deceit we should be carrying the full purchase tax increase and suffer a further diminution of profits. This company is insulting our business intelligence! Complain!

“All by Their Names”

SIR,—The label shown in Mr. Eastwood's letter in last week's correspondence (p. 564) originated on a medicine supplied from this pharmacy. It was not made apparent by the way it was laid out in your centre column that the words “Sulphadimidine 0.5 G” had been added in writing to the label after it had left the pharmacy. Our medical staff agree with the principle of labelling dispensed medicines with the name of the drug. Hundreds of thousands of dispensed medicines have been supplied in the past three-and-a-half years from this pharmacy labelled with the name of the drug and no complaints about them have been received. Hospital pharmacists have initiated this desirable change in pharmaceutical practice. There can be no doubt that it is in the best interests of the patient to use labels that tell him the names of the drugs he is taking, especially where he may be given a regimen of up to a dozen drugs a day. It is regrettable that an incident such as this can occur, but it is outweighed by the benefits to the many other patients.

A CHEQUE FOR £1,000: Mrs. J. M. Kendall, Leverstock Green, Hemel Hempstead, receives her first prize in final contest of series of “Spot The Shapes” competitions organised by Johnson & Johnson, Ltd., Slough, Bucks, to promote Band-aid washproof plasters. Presenting it is Mr. Peter Pritchard (deputy product manager). The event took place in the Manor Pharmacy, Leverstock Green, where Mrs. Kendall purchased her prize-winning tin. Trade prize of £100 was received by Mr. Idris Hughes on behalf of the Manor Pharmacy.

Rural Dispensing

SIR,—May I, through your columns, reply to the letter of Rural Pharmacist (C. & D., December 14, p. 564). Surely he does nothing constructive in making his comments during a delicately balanced situation in which negotiations are proceeding. It must be realised that there are two sides to each coin, and those of the medical profession who dispense for their patients do provide an efficient and popular service for their patients. We are not concerned with taking any realistic profit from rural pharmacists but in providing a service for all our patients, as required by our terms of service under the National Health Act. That we make a profit on such dispensing is surely honourable and commensurate with the service provided for our patients, and in any case makes a viable medical service in many rural areas. Without that profit many rural doctors would be unable to survive financially and the only people to suffer would then be the very people we serve, namely our patients. There are many inaccuracies in Rural Pharmacist's letter and I am surprised that your journal permits such fanning of political flames when the prime interest of the patients is so blatantly ignored.

Eusol—Liquid Paraffin Emulsions

SIR,—Emulsions of hypochlorite solutions with liquid paraffin suffer from a rapid loss of available chlorine unless care is exercised in the choice of a suitable emulgent. Ignorance of this fact is frequently brought to my notice by surgeons and others who have to use the preparation. Many years ago we suspected this loss of activity, and examined the stability of hypochlorite solutions with various emulsifying agents. As the instability is probably due to oxidation of the latter, we included Unemul in the list of agents tested. This is an inorganic material (an aluminium hydroxide) and, as expected, produced an emulsion with a prolonged activity ($\frac{1}{3}$ per cent. loss of available chlorine over twenty-three days). The next best emulgent was beeswax and as it could be found in most pharmacies, we decided to use this substance in preparing a standard emulsion; 93 per cent. of activity remained after twenty-three days and as our turn-over of the preparation is rapid, we put an expiry date of one month on each batch. The formula used is:—

Dakin's solution (or Eusol)	49 parts
Beeswax	1 part
Liquid paraffin	50 parts

The beeswax is dissolved in the heated liquid paraffin and, when cool, shaken with the Dakin's solution in a partly filled bottle. Homogenisation results in an improved product. I think these points should be brought to the attention of pharmacists as I am sure that many of the emulsions supplied at present are inactive.

Vouchers

SIR,—I recently looked at a growing bundle of vouchers on which I had allowed money to customers, and decided that I would like to receive the money promised by the firms which had issued the vouchers. I sent in vouchers to ten firms, requesting the face value and 1s. handling charge per firm. To date (a month after sending) I have received from five firms the face value of the vouchers and fivepence for postage. From one firm, to which I sent vouchers valued 2s. 2d., I have so far received sixpence. From Richard Hudnut I received not only the value of the voucher (1s.) but also the shilling handling charge requested. From Fisons Pharmaceuticals, Ltd., I received the value of the voucher (1s. 6d.), but no postage. They did look forward to my continued support! From two more firms I have not even had an acknowledgement—never mind the value of the voucher and postage. If I buy a product for 5s. to sell at 6s., why should I accept a voucher for 1s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. cash? Should I be content with less cash than I paid for the product and wait for the remaining 1s. 6d. when the firm condescends to pay me (without even paying the postage in sending in the voucher)? Messrs Beecham will be flooding the country with vouchers on Macleans tooth-paste valued at eightpence each, to be redeemed at face value only (unless I send in 100 at a time). As eightpence is more than the profit on the tooth-paste I shall be receiving less than my cost until the vouchers are cashed. I intend to send each voucher to Beechams by recorded delivery. If the manufacturers have to redeem them for eightpence plus fivepence postage and sixpence recording charge, then they may think up a scheme that does not involve me in waiting for my profit on Macleans tooth-paste. In fact I intend doing this with all vouchers in the future. Let us all do the same and the manufacturers may stop these time-wasting money-delaying schemes.

IRELAND'S HEALTH SCHEME

Pharmacists appeal to the Minister

SPEAKING at the annual conferring ceremony in Dublin on December 3 (see p. 580) the president of the Pharmaceutical Society of Ireland (Mr. T. R. Miller) deplored the failure of the Minister for Health to include pharmacists in the proposed regional-hospitals scheme. He made an appeal for "this deplorable oversight" to be corrected, and for the Minister to see that the controlling body of each regional hospital included a pharmacist, so that the hospital would have the expert advice of a specialist on drugs. He also called upon the Minister to consider the advantages of having extra pharmacists in the Department of Health. It seemed, he said, that the present staff could not cope with the increasing volume of complex work of drug control. Recent reports about the importation into another country of substandard drugs from Ireland, said Mr. Miller, had "tarnished the reputation of our native pharmaceutical industry." In recent years Ireland's exports of pharmaceuticals had, because of their high standards, leap-frogged in production, even against rigorous, and sophisticated competition. The drugs complained of had in fact been imported and re-exported. "Let us hope the incident will deter attempts to import substandard drugs into the Republic solely because they are cheaper than the products of reputable companies." He welcomed the Minister's recently announced intention (see C. & D., November, p. 478) to introduce a system of quality control for drugs. National health authorities all over the world were now addressing themselves to the question of drug safety. As far back as 1964 the Pharmaceutical Society of Ireland had been in communication with the Department of Health over the dangers of importing drugs of unknown origin and dubious quality, and he was confident that proposals submitted by the Society and by the Pharmaceutical and Allied Industries Association to the Minister for Health in 1966 had had an important bearing on the development and structure of the National Drugs Advisory Board. There were two pharmacists on the Board and one on its permanent staff, but he felt that there should also be a place on the Board for a pharmacist in private practice.

Two Issues in One

SUBSCRIBERS are reminded that, as last year, there will be no issue of THE CHEMIST AND DRUGGIST in Christmas week. Unlike last year, however, the two-in-one issue comes in the first, not the second week. That is a matter of practical politics. The time occupied in getting a weekly newspaper printed, and copies posted, to reach subscribers within the same week, when Christmas Day itself falls on a Wednesday, would, it is thought, leave little reading time for subscribers.

However, this week's issue contains rather more pages than usual and the supplement has all the prices received up to noon on December 18. We shall be back bringing subscribers all the news and prices in the issue bearing the next dateline: January 4, 1969.

A Book for Everyday Reference

NEARLY every subscriber should by now have received his copy of THE CHEMIST AND DRUGGIST YEAR BOOK and BUYERS GUIDE. Any who may not have done so should — after allowing, perhaps, a few more days for possible uncertainties of postal deliveries during the pre-Christmas pressures — let us know so that we can try to find out what has been holding it up.

The change of title will be noted by all who have received until this year a CHEMIST AND DRUGGIST DIARY AND YEAR BOOK. The alteration is deliberate and represents a shift of emphasis. Its intention is to keep pace with changed conditions of business. Long gone are the days when the main emphasis was on the Diary, and generous ruled space was provided under each day's date. That was geared to deliveries from wholesalers a week or more after the chemist had placed his order. For some years the space per day has been cut down and last year even that reduced space was halved. It seems adequate for the brief note of a forward engagement that is, perhaps, the type of entry that a "market research" into Diary use would reveal to be the most usual in the conditions of today. The pages saved in that curtailment of space have been made use of to increase the amount of information provided, making the annual volume much more of a day-to-day reference book that is better described by the new title.

Reference material new this year includes a brief guide to decimalisation, included at this stage rather to help the proprietors of pharmacies in reorienting their ideas on the new currency before it takes effect than to provide answers to all the practical problems that will arise when it does. In that reorientation process some Government help will be forthcoming, principally some greater guidance that has been promised on official equivalents. It is probable, therefore, that the subject will occupy much more space in the 1970 Year Book. That will be true also of the Medicines Act, the text of which was published at too advanced a stage in the production of the 1969 edition to permit more than an outline presentation.

One other subject of currently paramount importance to all traders — the Trade Descriptions Act — is fully treated in a way that, it is believed, will encourage users to refer to pp. 209 and 210 to find prompt answers to their problems or to learn where the answers are to be found.

Chemists running photographic departments will find the tables of film speeds and apparatus repairers an invaluable stockroom of information that might otherwise have to be hunted out from a whole variety of sources.

The fact that many titles are familiar from previous editions should lead none to suppose they are "the mixture as before." Extensive changes made during 1968 in Parts I and II of the Poisons List for Great Britain are fully noted under Statutory Poisons. Updated in the same way are the sections on Dangerous Drugs; the spirit laws (now probably the most complete and concise guide to that subject that is to be had), the Pharmaceutical Services under N.H.S. (its subsection on prescription charges and exemptions should be particularly noted); purchase tax (up to date in respect of the Chancellor's most recent use of the "regulator"); companies with interests in pharmacy giving the many changes through mergers that have taken place; postal information; and salaries.

Entries in the directory sections are, of course, referred each year to the organisations or persons concerned for correction, and if, after all, they are found by any user to be incomplete or in need of revision the Editor would welcome letters giving chapter or verse, so that Year Book users may be informed through their weekly C. & D.

The Buyers Guide and Trade Directory pages deserve, it would seem, to be much more often turned to, for they provide on-the-spot answers that take a day or two to get back when the questions are sent in to the C. & D., Information Department, happy though we are to help those who may not have realised they already had the answers in their Year Book — either under the headings cited, or in manufacturers' and suppliers' own announcements, which incidentally make this year's edition one of the most colourful and attractive in the series.

Ideas for new features will be welcomed. Those that come early stand the best chance of being acted upon in next year's edition. Late ones will be equally examined but may have to be held over for the next but one.

ON THE SIDELINES

★ A CENTURY IN THREE GENERATIONS ★

THE Wilmslow, Ches, pharmaceutical business of Charles Charnley, Ltd., has just completed 100 years of existence, a span covered in three generations of the family. The business was started in the autumn of 1868 by Charles Charnley (the present chairman's grandfather). New premises in Grove Street were built and occupied in 1884. In 1908 Charles Charnley was succeeded by his son of the same name. The present chairman (Charles R. Charnley) served his apprenticeship 1928-31, qualifying in 1933.

He returned to the business after demobilisation in 1946. In 1961 the company acquired the business of Cumberbirch's, Alderley Edge.

★ BUSINESS MERGER IN SOUTH AFRICA ★

SOUTH AFRICA'S current takeover king (Mr. F. G. Beard, deputy chairman and chief executive, Protea Holdings), has added another business to his company's expanding fold. The new acquisition is Norwood Coaker, pharmaceutical manufacturers, the purchase price being in the region of R1 million. Norwood Coaker was started by an English pharmacist of the same name who was the first person to be granted an apothecary's licence in the Orange Free State Republic and opened a pharmacy at Jagersfontein in 1880. Sixteen years later he moved his business to Landybrand and started to manufacture. That enterprise today produces a wide range of proprietary medicines, toiletries, perfumes, baby food and vitamin products, which are sold throughout South Africa. For some years the firm produced the range of Du Lundi toiletries which were later sold to the Beecham Group in 1959.

★ PERCHANCE TO DREAM ★

To find that others are trying to cope with similar problems to one's own is a comforting if sometimes chastening experience. There was much sympathy within the C. & D. office, therefore, for the members of the Medical News editorial staff who were described (December 6, p. 14) as having been "experiencing great difficulties in the matter of designation of the various metastases of the old Ministry of Health." As elsewhere, the Medical News staff have been attempting to arrive at, and adhere to, recognisable titles for those who have replaced Mr. Kenneth Robinson. Apparently they asked for advice from "one of those mythical figures—a Whitehall spokesman." Whether he had been already faced with the problem was not known, but his suggestion was to call "the whole thing" the "Department of Social Services." Medical News comments that he had evidently overlooked the journalists' habit of saving space by using the first letters only (WHO, EFTA, etc.) because the spokesman's suggestion, when contracted, became DOSS. "But DOSS seems kind of lonely without the usual accompanying noun and I have a sneaky suspicion that, however hard the Elephant may snore, the occupants are unlikely to be too happy if their giant hive is to be called the 'DOSS House'—it might be too near the truth."

★ FOR THE RECORD ★

MR. Stanley Earl Greenwood, recently the subject of a paragraph in these pages (C. & D., November 9, p. 437), has sent us on loan two documents of some historic interest. The first is the indentures on vellum of his father Solomon Greenwood to William Boor "of Wisbech St. Peters, Chemist and Druggist." The young Greenwood, according to the custom of the time, bound himself for four years to "serve the secrets" of his apprentice-master, keep his lawful commands, not waste his goods, nor contract matrimony, play at cards or haunt taverns or playhouses. The second document is an agreement by Solomon Greenwood to purchase from Stephen Hopkinson "all that stock, fixtures, fittings and utensils-in-trade in and upon the premises situated Market Place, Bolsover, aforesaid." As purchaser Greenwood undertook "to place in the hands of Messrs. Evans Sons & Co. of Liverpool as deposit in part payment of the purchase money the sum of twenty-five pounds, etc. The vendor, for his part, undertook not to become engaged in the business of a chemist and druggist "either as principal or assistant or in any other capacity whatsoever connected with the said business of a chemist and druggist within the county of Derbyshire for a period of ten years from the date of this agreement under a penalty of two hundred (sic) pounds." The date was 1902, and the document, bearing a 15s. 6d. red-embossed stamp, is on paper headed "J. Shacklady, chemists' valuer." Besides being the son of a pharmacist Mr. S. E. Greenwood also married into pharmacy. His father-in-law, Harold Lomax, born in 1883, served his pharmaceutical apprenticeship with James Lomax (no relation), in Darwen, Lancs (now Hartleys Chemists). He went as dispenser to Dr. Banister, Blackburn, then, after marrying the daughter of a mill-owner, transferred to London in 1904 to work with another doctor, the German Dr. Weiss, while pursuing his pharmaceutical studies at the Westminster College of Pharmacy. After qualifying in 1908 Harold Lomax purchased the Edge Lane, Liverpool, pharmacy of a Mr. Thomas, and remained in the city for half a century—the proprietor, in the forties, of seven pharmacies. Lomax became known as the "recorder" of Liverpool, by virtue of contributing "Liverpool Notes" to THE CHEMIST AND DRUGGIST, 1912-22.

★ SELF-MEDICATION IN 1897 ★

RECENTLY there was brought into the Editor's office an obviously old set of medicaments compactly housed in a rectangular leather case fitted with external strap and buckle, as the picture shows. As most of the screw-capped phials bore the label of "H. T. Kirby & Co., 14 Newman Street, London, W.1," the case was sent to the company at its present address at Mildenhall, Suffolk, with a request for any available information as to its origin. "We have dated the case," came the reply, "as being supplied in 1897 and its original purpose was self-medication by missionaries, serving officers and professional people going to India and the Colonies." Internal evidence corroborates that purpose, for the phial of quinine tablets was almost empty, and some calomel and chlorodyne tablets appeared to have been taken. The majority, however, were intact, indicating a most discreet and restrained resort to self-medication by the owner, whether missionary, serving officer or professional person, during his period of overseas service.

STATE BENEFIT: The nation's health would benefit by cutting out drugs of little value and persuading doctors to reduce the orgy of pill-swallowing at public expense.—The Sun, November 14.

From Apothecary to Pharmacist—Series 2

By T. D. WHITTET, B.Sc., Ph.D., F.P.S., F.R.I.C., D.B.A.

PORTUGAL

IN Portugal the title for the apothecary before the seventeenth century was boticairo, which then became boticário. The word for the apothecary's shop was botica. Information on the origin of those titles has been given by Sanches (1636) and De Pina. The former appears to have come from apothecarius through apothicquaire, boticairo to boticário and the latter directly from apotheca to botica.

It is impossible to ascertain the exact date of those changes, but there are several clues. Da Silva, in his "History of Portuguese Pharmacy" (1868) stated "The word farmacêutico (pharmacist) is a very recent one and its more general employment belongs, at most, to the beginning of this century (nineteenth), and I believe it is not far from the institution of Pharmacy Schools in France." Those schools were instituted under the Law of 21 Germinal, XI year (1803) although several pharmacy schools had been set up earlier under the Law of 1 Ventémiaire, IV year (1795) which had accorded the citizens the right to establish private institutions of education and learning.

Dr. Torrhina has told me (personal communication) that he believes the first use of the word was in the Farmacopoeia Dogmatica, a Portuguese work of 1771, before the official adoption of the title pharmacien in France in 1777. He believes that frequent use of the word farmacêutico began during the first quarter of the nineteenth century and that it became general with the founding of the Sociedade Farmacêutica de Lisboa (Pharmaceutical Society of Lisbon) on July 24, 1835.

Portugal came under the domination of Spain from 1580 to 1641, but that probably had little effect on pharmacy. Leal (1960) has indicated that the title boticário was used in Court and military circles. He states that one of the apothecaries of the Court of King D. Manuel I (sixteenth century) was the first apothecary known to have practised in the Hospital de Todos os Santos (All Saints' Hospital) the most important hospital of old Lisbon and the earliest of its civil hospitals. The first nomination for the apothecary of Coimbra University, whose duties were generally different from those of the Royal Hospital apothecaries of the same city, was made by King D. João III in the fourteenth century.

Royal apothecaries were also appointed to the Royal Navy Hospital Pharmacy and the Court Army Hospital Pharmacy in the eighteenth century. Pharmacists still hold commissions in the Portuguese Armed Forces and their title is farmacêutico.

Gradual Transition

The transition of title appears to have been gradual, and there is no mention of it in contemporary legislation. Nor is the reason for the change obvious. It appears that for many years the apothecaries were under the domination of physicians, and in the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries they petitioned the King against the rules of the Fisicatura-Mór (Chief Physician). They wished to emphasise their professional status and to exalt and enoble it from the scientific point of view, as had been done in France, then a power of considerable influence in Portugal. Torrhina considers that everyone knew that the name pharmacist (farmacêutico) was closely related to science, whilst that of apothecary (boticário) reminded them only of a shop (boutique). In 1838 Gregório de Sousa Pereira, vice-president of the Sociedade Farmacêutica Lusitana, as the Sociedade Farmacêutica de Lisboa became in that year, speaking to his colleagues of the word boticário, stated "The names applied to the pharmacists owning a shop, to their assistants and pupils, not dishonourable in fact, but as such considered—regarding the intentions in question—are now almost in disuse." That comment is similar to the views in France on the change from apothicaire to pharmacien.

Torrhina believes that the founders of the Sociedade Farmacêutica were mainly responsible for popularising the use of the title farmacêutico but, despite that fact, they continued for many years to call their pharmacies boticas. The word farmacêutico was frequently used in the Journal da Sociedade Farmaceutica Lusitana (Journal of the Lusitanian Pharmaceutical Society). When that society was remodelled in 1838, the Statutes declared "Article 4.0 It will consist: I of approved pharmacists (farmacêuticos)."

The decrees, ordinances, patents and royal provisions of that time showed a reluctance to use the word farmacêutico and persisted in the use of boticario, and it was not until after the foundation of the Sociedade Farmacêutica de Lisboa that the change became general in legal documents. For example, the Ordinance of November 18, 1836, which suppressed the boticários and farmacêuticos examinations, and the Decree of December 29, 1836, to regulate the Medical-Surgical Schools of Lisbon and Oporto, always used the word farmacêutico instead of boticário. The Sociedade Farmacêutica Lusitana was abolished in 1933, when the Corporate State came into existence, and was replaced by the Sindicato Nacional dos Farmacêuticos, but it retains its old title as a subsidiary one. The headquarters of the Sindicato are in a street named Rua da Sociedade Farmacêutica. Its official organ is the Revista Portuguesa de Farmácia.

At present the use of the titles farmácia and farmacêutico is almost universal in Portugal, though some old pharmacies still use botica, as shown in the figure. Drug stores of the British type, run by unqualified persons, also exist in Portugal and are called drogeria.

UP 40 PER CENT. IN NINE MONTHS

Modernising a century old pharmacy brings rich rewards

WHEN the late Mr. H. J. Green died in 1962, the pharmacy established in Frome, Somerset, by his grandfather way back in 1859 was acquired by Mr. T. W. Withington, who undertook the first major alteration for over a century.

Mr. Withington removed the dispensary screen and transferred the dispensary into a rear room, enlarging the sales area from 95 to 150 sq. ft. in so doing.

There was an immediate increase of turnover, but by the end of 1966 it was evident that no further appreciable increase could be expected without further change. Counterpoint Store Equipment, Ltd., Eldon Way, Hockley, Essex, were called in and asked to plan for a complete refit and conversion to self-selection.

Sales Area Expanded

First major task was to expand the sales area. In effecting the necessary structural alterations Mr. Withington employed direct labour and purchased his own materials. An existing staircase in the shop was resited at the rear of the building. The dividing wall between shop and dispensary was removed, and the necessary timbers fitted to take the ceiling. That increased the sales area to 400 sq. ft. Although the dispensary area was consequently reduced, re-equipment and planning of the new dispensary layout by Counterpoint have given it a greater efficiency and speedier out-turn.

The entire area was re-wired, with new fluorescent lighting and fan heating. Polystyrene tiles were fitted to the ceiling and a new floor was laid with lino tiles.

The original shopfront, full of character, was wisely retained, but the old window backs removed to increase the natural light and to give passers by a better view of the interior.

Costs

Mr. Withington estimates that the structural alterations cost £400, and that he probably saved himself about £300 by doing his own purchasing and employing his own labour. The Counterpoint installation cost a further £1,600. Main left-hand wall is fitted with a run of four full-size and three dwarf Counterpoint wall units having an arrangement of open shelves, glass display cabinets, nests of drawers and base storage units with glazed doors. The full-size units carry beauty aids, cosmetics and perfumery. The dwarf units, near the prescription counter, contain a display of dental and household goods together with a selection of male toiletries.

The right-hand wall run is fitted with open shelving at eye level, low-base storage drawers and shelving. The merchandise displayed consists of fancy goods, infant goods, and toiletries. The service counter is placed at the rear of the sales area adjacent to the newly equipped Counterpoint dispensary. Dwarf units behind the counter display surgical, diabetic, medicinal and photographic merchandise. The counter is glazed in front and on top, and is used to show more costly scents and lotions that would be unsuitable for open displays.

A double-sided gondola unit is located in the centre of the sales area for seasonal and household goods, and a dwarf gondola, backing on to the window, displays a full selection of hair sprays.

Mr. Withington says "turnover has increased by 40 per cent. in the first nine months since modernisation by Counterpoint, and the average sale per customer has increased from 3s. to 5s. The wages bill has remained the same." Stocks of pharmaceuticals, counter lines and "ethical" dispensary items remain the same, but the range of baby foods, cosmetics, fancy goods and photographic supplies has been increased. Customer comment has been entirely favourable.

A view of the pharmacy before modernisation. In the picture the pharmacy is substantially as it was over a century ago with little space for customers to circulate.

A view of the pharmacy as it now is, with structural alterations by Mr. Withington himself and shopfitting installations supplied by Counterpoint.

Pharmaceutical Society of Ireland

DECEMBER MEETING OF COUNCIL

DISAPPOINTMENT was expressed by DR. W. BOLES at the monthly meeting of the Council of the Pharmaceutical Society of Ireland in Dublin on December 10 at the fact that the Health Services Negotiating Committee, set up more than a year ago to direct negotiations in relation to the proposed new Health Services, had not been meeting more frequently.

Vital to Speak with One Voice

Dr. Boles also stressed that it was vital that all members of the committee should speak with one voice so that there would be no confusion in the minds of pharmacists about the proposals being put forward to the Department of Health on their behalf. It was a matter of concern to him that the committee, on which were four members of Council, had not been meeting more frequently. Members were disappointed at the slow progress made since negotiations first began almost three years ago. Aspects of changes in the Health Scheme proposed by the former Minister for Health (Mr. O'Malley) had been discussed in detail but there were other aspects he felt had not been considered in a corporate sense but only in an individual manner. Dr. Boles added that although he had been told of cases in which medical cards had been cancelled, he was aware of a considerable rise in the number of "hardship" cases. As a member of the negotiating committee he felt there was a difference of opinion among some members. As there was a possibility of the Minister bringing in proposals before Christmas he thought they should have a full discussion to anticipate developments.

MR. M. L. CASHMAN said that as chairman of the committee he had taken his side of the discussions so far as he could. It was almost twelve months since the last submission to the Department had been made, and they had been asked to present their case with "reasonable expedition." But so far there had been no response. Mr. Cashman said he would never again allow himself to be "jockeyed" into a position in which adequate study and thought could not be given to proposals through accepting a "sense of urgency" plea on behalf of a Department. There was a "mountain of work" to be done on the proposals but he would not start on it "until the guidelines are clearly set." If the committee tried to rush ahead of the party to the discussions, they would be guessing. If necessary he would suggest that, when a reply was received from the Department, those involved in the negotiations should take a week's leave. They could not work on the negotiations on a part-time basis. Mr. Cashman added that with the president and vice-president he had attended a meeting of Wexford Chemists' Association recently and the members had voted unanimously in favour of the committee's attitude. He did not believe in calling a meeting when there was nothing concrete to discuss.

The president (MR. T. R. MILLER) said Kerry Chemists' Association had also expressed support for the committee. DR. BOLES said that the Minister for Health had stated in the Dail recently that the Service was dependent on negotiations with doctors, manufacturers and wholesalers. Dr. Boles agreed that the matter could not be considered fully until more concrete information was available.

MR. CASHMAN said he was aware of conflicting opinions in the committee but the Department would not have "a walk over." He would stand by the original submission. There would be no "settling afterwards;" things would be settled first or not at all. Mr. Cashman said that the present concept of drug distribution was ridiculous. For supermarkets to be allowed to have psychedelic drugs on their shelves seemed to be regarded as reasonable by some responsible officers of the Department of Health. "Let us cut out this stupidity and have a responsible system of drug distribution with the pharmacist, who is justified by his training, skill and experience, playing his rightful part, or else scrap the whole lot."

THE PRESIDENT again called for unanimity among committee members but MR. CASHMAN said they were entitled to a minority opinion. MR. M. F. WALSH: "Not if they have already agreed to the proposals." MR. D. J. KENNELLY said the average pharmacist looked to the Council for guidance. Any minority view on the committee would have to accept majority rule.

MR. MURPHY said that the previous Sunday the Taoiseach (Mr. Lynch) had opened a community centre in Cork. It was being serviced by three local community pharmacists who were being paid by the local authority. The pharmacists had had only one week to consider their position and they were informed that, had they not accepted the offer, it had been proposed to employ a pharmacist in the centre. Mr. Murphy understood that it was planned to establish five more such centres in Cork city at a cost of £70,000.

MR. KENNELLY said that such centres were becoming the pattern in Britain. There would have to be a national attitude to giving a pharmaceutical service in those centres in the Republic. Too many local arrangements were being made without adequate study of the implications.

MR. CASHMAN said he hoped to call a meeting of the negotiating committee in January 1969.

The registrar (MR. J. G. COLEMAN) reported that he had written to the Minister for Health about his statement in the Dail on December 5 on the setting up of a working party to advise on drug abuse and associated problems. The statement provoked an unusual number of protests from pharmacists, most suggesting that the Minister appeared to have overlooked that pharmacists were the first line of defence in the fight against drug abuse and addiction. "It is difficult to imagine how any committee which does not include a pharmacist in contact with everyday practice can do much more than theorise about the extent of the problem" the letter went on. Intractable addiction frequently had its origin in teenage experimentation with relatively commonplace medicaments, and pharmacists were usually the first to become aware of those trends. The Society's inspectors collected and collated the information. "I do not know of any other organisation which has a clearing-house similar to, or as efficient as, the Pharmaceutical Society. Almost daily we are alerted by some pharmacist that a person has attempted to procure drugs, or has either forged or modified a prescription. The next time you read in a newspaper that some person has been before a court on a drug offence, you may be reasonably sure that the police were given the basic information by the Society."

Synthetic Narcotics

The registrar read a further letter sent to the Minister in regard to the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1934. On behalf of the Council it welcomed the Minister's assurance that a Government Order bringing the list of synthetic narcotics under the control of the Act would be made in the near future, and noted his statement that he had not received representations from the medical profession or from hospital authorities on the necessity for regulations controlling the custody, etc., of drugs in institutions. In the Council's opinion that was not surprising, because such controls were irksome. Regulations at present in force were not observed in all cases, the chief lapse being in relation to records. It was hoped that the subject might be considered again with the regulations on "controlled preparations."

MR. J. P. O'DONNELL reported on the International Pharmaceutical Federation Congress held in Hamburg during September, at which he had represented the Council. He said it was proposed to set up a special section to look after the interests of pharmacists in general practice and a committee, under Sir High Linstead, had been appointed to explore the position. Mr. O'Donnell felt it essential that Ireland should be represented at all the Federation's deliberations.

MR. R. J. SEMPLÉ asked if any information was available concerning the introduction of a general standard of pharmaceutical education for member countries. In view of the Republic's possible admission to the Common Market he would like to see a general standard. As matters stood, the qualifications of the Society's graduates were not recognised in every member State. MR. COSTELLO said he understood the Department of Health was co-operating with the Society with a view to bringing such uniformity about.

MR. CORRIGAN said Professor Timoney had given an assurance that the Society's curriculum was as good as in most countries.

An Advertisement Considered

Arising out of the inspector's report, Council considered an advertisement for the opening of a new supermarket in the Dublin suburbs. In the advertisement was the announcement that the premises would include a pharmacy entitled "Super Pharm. Ltd." Members felt that, while they had no control over unethical titles, such a title implies that that was the only efficient pharmacy in the area. It was agreed to write to the two pharmacist directors concerned expressing the Council's views.

Arising out of the Schools Committee report, a letter was received from the recently appointed staff/students' committee (set up by direction of University College, Dublin) requesting increased library facilities in the College of Pharmacy. Council passed a token payment of £100 for the purchase of additional copies of reference books in greatest demand. The Committee also recommended that the posology examination should not be included in the subjects for the degree examination, expressing the opinion that it should be included in the Society's qualifying examination for the Licentiate. Council decided that as other changes introduced in 1967 were working well, no further changes would be introduced until their effects were fully evaluated.

Arising out of the Practice of Pharmacy Committee report, MR. WALSH urged that the Council should give greater support to the Post-graduate Education Committee in its efforts to arrange post-graduate courses. THE PRESIDENT agreed that those who, like himself, had qualified under the old Regulations would benefit by such courses. The difficulty was to make courses available to pharmacists in the provinces. MR. F. LOUGHMAN was confident that courses in centres such as Clonmel would attract many pharmacists from a wide area. It was decided to go into the matter in detail later.

Messrs. Costello and O'Sullivan were appointed to represent the Council at a Votive Requiem Mass in the Pro-Cathedral, Dublin, for those killed on Irish roads and the president and Dr. Boles were appointed to represent the Council at a special service in Christ Church Cathedral. The invitation to be represented had been extended by the Safety First Association.

MR. POWER reported that with the president he had met representatives of the Hospital Pharmacists' Association and had suggested that they participate in drawing up a blueprint in relation to the proposals of the Joint Consultative Council. The chief pharmacist of Edinburgh Royal Infirmary had indicated that he would be prepared to help with necessary information.

THE PRESIDENT reported on a recent meeting with representatives of the Veterinary Association. It had been agreed to draw up a memorandum to be sent to the Department of Agriculture. The questions of substandard drugs and the need to ensure that drugs were not sold for veterinary use by unqualified people had been discussed. MR. CASHMAN said the present abuse was not in the interests of the farming community and could give rise to problems relating to the retention of drugs in the tissues of animals. MR. R. J. POWER said they were anxious that farmers should continue to have necessary medicines available but were anxious that drug abuse be avoided and that the necessary control should be introduced.

Licence certificates of the following were signed and sealed:—Olive F. Arnold, Sunnyside, Loch Gowna, co. Cavan; Laloo Bhagwan, 1 Ortnan Road, Pietermaritzburg, Natal, South Africa; Catherine P. Ghow, 44 Green Lane, Penang, Malaysia; Eileen P. Wren, 16 Main Street, Castleisland, Co. Kerry.

The following changes of address were noted:—J. J. Dunning, M.P.S.I., to 120 Merrion Court, Merrion Row, Dublin, 2; T. McAuliffe, M.P.S.I., to 36 Knocknashee, Dundrum, Dublin, 14; M. Power, M.P.S.I., to 119 O'Connell Street, Limerick; M. J. Power, M.P.S.I., to 119 O'Connell Street, Limerick; E. N. Phelan, Assistant, to 25 Lower Yellow Road, Waterford.

The following were nominated for Membership:—Olive F. Arnold, Sunnyside, Loch Gowna, co. Cavan; Catherine P. Cashman, Dunkerron, 75 Whitehall Road, Dublin, 12; Philomena M. T. Clarke, Dunderry, Navan, co. Meath; O. I. Corrigan, 80 Malahide Road, Dublin, 3; R. N. Jeawon, Durban, South Africa; B. C. Maxwell, Ballinagore, Mullingar, co. Westmeath.

The following were elected to Membership:—Dr. R. F. Chute, L.P.S.I., 31 The Mall, Tralee, co. Kerry; T. Moran, L.P.S.I., Rosemary Street, Roscrea, co. Tipperary; Dr. G. Rosenthal, L.P.S.I., 57 Harcourt Street, Dublin, 2; Dr. A. M. O. O. Salau, L.P.S.I., Freetown, Sierra Leone.

Mrs. Philomena Clarke (née Martin), L.P.S.I., was restored to the Register.

Mrs. Mary Kelleher (née Crowley), L.P.S.I., and Mrs. Mary B. Broderick (née McMahon), Assistant, submitted marriage certificates and were granted change of names in the Register.

The following names were entered on the Pharmaceutical Assistants' Preliminary Register: Monica A. Commings, Seskin, Slievenamon Road, Clonmel; Mary J. D. Kirwan, Main Street, Kilmacthomas, co. Waterford; Margaret M. Barry, Gurtycloona, Bantry, co. Cork; Mary A. Conway, Virgo Maria, Devon Park, Salthill, Galway; Susan D. B. McBride, Inverin, co. Galway.

The Registrar reported on the deaths of John Oldham Atkinson, L.P.S.I. and Albert J. McCormack.

Benevolent Fund Cheque

At the beginning of the Council meeting Mr. Gar Golden (chairman of the special fund-raising committee attached to the Benevolent Fund Dance Committee) handed over a cheque for £427. The sum represented the balance from 1967 of money received under the scheme in which each pharmacist pays, by bankers' order, a fixed sum of £2 2s. annually into the Fund. MR. GOLDEN, who was accompanied by Messrs. M. Murphy and J. McCormack (officers of the Committee) said it was the first fruits of what they believed would be "a bountiful harvest." The scheme had been introduced to ensure a continued flow of income and to eliminate much of the doubt that existed every year as to whether the Benevolent Fund would be able to meet all its commitments. Mr. Golden appealed to the Council to co-operate in making known the existence and value of the Fund. THE PRESIDENT expressed the Council's appreciation and said he realised the dedication that had gone into raising such a handsome sum. The president said all were sorry to hear that the chairman of the Benevolent Fund Committee (Mr. Costello) had met with an accident. They were glad to learn that he was continuing to make progress.

On the motion of MR. KENNELLY it was agreed to send a message of good wishes to Mrs. Mary Brassil, M.P.S.I., Ballyheigue, co. Kerry, for the recovery of her young daughter, Marie, who had recently undergone a heart operation in Capetown, conducted by Dr. Barnard.

Apologies for inability to attend were received from Messrs. V. G. McElwee, Dungloe and G. C. O'Neill, Dublin.

At a meeting of the Benevolent Fund which followed, a number of grants were passed for payment. Kerry Chemists' Association forwarded a cheque for £50 from their funds. The President thanked the Association for the reception accorded to himself and the registrar on the occasion of the Kerry annual dinner-dance.

SHOP TOPIC—13

Ask "Which," Not "Whether"

ONE of the many tricky situations which a chemist and his assistants face arises when a customer is shown more than one item of a kind. The items may be relatively inexpensive, such as toothbrushes, or much more costly, such as electric blankets. Sometimes that may imperil a sale, because the customer may become confused and uncertain and say: "I think I'll leave it for now."

The problem, indeed, is just as likely to be that of the customer who may not buy anything at all as of the customer who is spoilt by choice. This is where "which" can save you from the dangers of "whether." "Whether" is the fight inside the customer's mind between something and nothing—between buy and not-buy. If not-buy wins, the sale is lost.

Another War

The best way to keep whether out of the customer's mind is to start another "war" instead. This war is called which. Should she buy this toothbrush, or that? Should she buy this electric blanket or that or the other? To you, the usefulness of which is that, whatever item wins, you also win, for you make a sale.

When whether holds the field, not-buy is just as likely to win as buy. But when the customer is preoccupied with which, the assistant is well on the way to a sale, unless she boobs. That is why which is usually the highroad to a sale.

Early in the sales interview will not be too soon to start using the word which. "Which of these lipstick shades do you like best, madam?" "Do hold both of these brushes, madam, and tell which you find easiest to hold." "As you want it for a gift, madam, which wrapping do you think most attractive?"

Steady emphasis on which is calculated to put the customer into the which frame of mind. This will in itself do much to stop any thinking about whether. Equally, you will be careful yourself to avoid the use of the actual word whether. You will never say "I don't know whether this style appeals to you." You will always turn it round so that it becomes "I wonder which of these styles appeals most to you, madam."

There is nothing high-pressure about which. You are not telling the customer what she should like. You have shown certain items and made the selling points for each. In asking which, you are merely consulting her. But the more you fill her mind with which the less room there is for whether.

Capturing the Sale

When she's told you which of two, three, or more items she prefers, it's going to be difficult for her to turn round and say she doesn't like any of them. In saying which she prefers, the chances are she will also say why. If you fasten on to those reasons and recap those of your selling points that fit them, you should be able to capture the sale without any appearance of pressure.

It's always a help when a customer begins to sell herself an item. One advantage of asking a customer which she prefers of items A and B is that, having chosen, she is now some way to selling herself the item preferred. She has nearly cut off her retreat.

But in saying she prefers B, she may add a "but." She may say "I like B best, but I'm just wondering about the colour." You have extracted the sole objection. If you can remove it, either by persuading her that the colour has an appeal that tends to grow on one, or that it is distinctive without being peculiar, or by showing the same item in another colour that pleases her, she's left without any really solid ground for failing to make a purchase.

Which often brings a residual objection into the daylight in this way. Then you have a great advantage of being able to get to grips with it. How much better is that than having to deal with a customer when she merely doesn't like the item presented!

NEW BOOKS

Selected Pharmacological Testing Methods

A. BURGER (editor). Marcel Dekker, Inc., New York, U.S.A. (in Britain Edward Arnold (Publishers), Ltd., 41 Maddox Street, W.1.), 9 x 6 in. Pp. xiv + 515. 215s. THIRD volume in a medicinal research series under the same editorship, the book was preceded by works on drugs affecting the peripheral and central nervous systems respectively. The early chapters contain an appraisal of the objects and limitations of testing methods and an explanation of statistical methods that does not make too great mathematical demands on the reader. Methods of testing are then discussed according to therapeutic activity in chapters written by individual expert authors. The claim is made that, though by no means the first work on the subject, this book is different in that the reviews of methods are discussed in a critical manner against a background of each authors own experience and in the belief that the methods should be based on an understanding of the normal and abnormal processes for which they are designed.

World Patent Law and Practice

J. W. BAXTER, Sweet & Maxwell, Ltd., 11 New Fetter Lane, London, E.C.4. 9½ x 6 in. Pp. xiii 363. 105s.

THIS extensive work of reference is arranged, its preface states, so as to enable the practice for a given subject in any of the listed countries to be readily ascertained, and there is no doubt that it is crammed with relevant facts. A table provided gives information on the required size of the drawing to be appended, if required, to a patent specification, on whether the drawing is to be on card or paper cloth, and even on what size margin in either in. or cm. is required. In the United Kingdom the normal term for a patent is sixteen years, but in other countries can vary from 3-12 years in Ecuador to twenty years in such countries as France, Tangier and Ruanda. The book is, as the preface implies, a standard work on world patent practice. For the pharmacist in industry who requires some knowledge of patent practice on the international scene it will be a required volume on his bookshelf. Persons specialising in patent affairs will regard it as a valuable "tool of the trade," if one may use that expression without causing misunderstanding.

"The Medical Messiahs"

JAMES HARVEY YOUNG, Princeton University Press, Princeton, New Jersey, U.S.A. 8½ x 5½ in. Pp. 460. 85s. 6d.

THE book gives an account of the advertising and sale of "patent" medicines and describes the uphill struggle to curb the more extravagant claims made for them that occurred in the United States of America in the present century. The author has obviously done considerable research into his subject, and in consequence the detail presented makes for rather slow reading. The book is not one to skim through, but the patient and untiring reader comes to see the difficulties that faced the law-makers who unfortunately failed to define their requirements precisely, thus enabling several of the more blatant and prosperous infringers to evade the law. If the criminal law is to be invoked in cases of this type where the subject may lose his liberty, it is inevitable that he should have the right to a jury trial, though some of the verdicts reached can only be described as appalling. After reading the book one cannot help coming to the conclusion that the modest efforts of the Pharmaceutical Society, using the framework of the Pharmacy and Poisons Act, 1933, and Pharmacy and Medicines Act, 1941, have proved as effective in England as the massive enforcement programme that was launched in America.

Bell and O'Keefe's Sale of Food and Drugs (with binder for future supplements)

JOHN A. O'KEEFE, Butterworth & Co. (Publishers), Ltd., 88 Kingsway, London, W.C.2. 10 x 6 in. Pp. liv + 1,584. 230s. (postage 6s. extra).

THIS massive volume could be regarded as the well of knowledge for this subject rather than the fountain of knowledge, being silent and deep rather than sparkling and refreshing. The book contains all the Statutory Instruments and annotations of relevant cases concerning food and drugs. Though dated 1968 it makes no reference to Appleby v Sleep (1968) 2 All E.R. 265, a case in which the Divisional court decided that the supply of drugs to a National Health Service patient was not a sale to the Executive Council and dismissed a prosecution under Section 2 of the Food and Drugs Act 1955. Presumably the case will be included in one of the supplements that are to be published from time to time. The references to drugs, pharmacy and pharmacists are not numerous or informative, and it is surprising that the Pharmacy and Medicines Act, 1941, is printed in full, while only the Poisons List and certain sections of the Pharmacy and Poisons Act, 1933, are included, and a number of the references are to other works. Nevertheless this is a valuable work of reference that has run to fourteen editions—and that is the definitive test of a textbook on the law. The volume will probably not find a place on the pharmacist's bookshelf, but it should be on the bookshelf of his legal adviser, should he have a Food and Drugs problem, and on the shelves of those in industry who require to "dip into the well" even occasionally.

Merck Index

P. G. STETCHER (editor), Merck & Co., Inc., Rahway, New Jersey, U.S.A. (Distributors: Merck, Sharp & Dohme, Ltd., Hoddesdon, Herts.) 25 x 17 cm. Pp. xii + 1713 £7 7s. Eighth edition.

USERS of the well-thumbed eight-year-old seventh edition of "Merck" will welcome the new edition, which contains, in a total of 9,500 entries, 2,000 new monographs on chemicals. To make room for the new material a start has been made on excising the lists of derivatives and their melting points and on making the structural formulae more stereospecific. The tables on isotomic solutions, physical properties, medicinal use of radioactive isotopes and the periodic classification have all been revised and other material brought up to date. A new help to tracing a required monograph is an index of empirical formulae. The section on organic "name" reactions has been revised and contains 460 entries, nearly all with relevant equations. Other new sections include abbreviations and non-proprietary names adopted by the U.S. Adopted Names Council (U.S.A.N.) and World Health Organisation for organic radicals; prefixes used in the metric system; and a list of code letters used by different companies for experimental compounds. The bulk of the book, comprising descriptions of drugs and chemicals, is limited to single substances and "natural mixtures" selected for inclusion by the editorial staff. Data have been taken from the literature. They include synonyms and proprietary names (where known); colour is given wherever possible (but not white or colourless); melting points; solubilities; optical rotations, uses, etc.; 4,800 of the monographs contain information on toxicities and medical uses. Substances are indexed by proprietary, non-proprietary, generic and chemical name.

NEW FILMS

Every Baby a Wanted Baby

Eothel Films, Ltd., for LR Industries, Ltd., Hall Lane, London, E.4. Colour. Sound. Running time 35 minutes. A REPLACEMENT for the film "According to Plan," this production is available through the film unit of LR Industries, Ltd., who provide free projection services and speakers. It shows a group of people with various motives for family planning who have gathered to learn from an experienced speaker details of all the birth control methods available today. The film is primarily intended for use by lay adult organisations but may be suitable for schools.

Work Study—An Introduction

BRITISH PRODUCTIVITY COUNCIL (Hire from Central Film Library, Government Building, Bromyard Avenue, London, W.3 (also at Glasgow and Cardiff) 16mm. Colour. Running time 23 minutes.

THE film demonstrates the approach of work study through from main case histories. One of these is an investigation into the time taken to give patients their medicines in a hospital. After timing the work done by the nurses under the existing method of taking medicines out of a fixed cupboard, laying them on a trolley, etc., the case was studied to see what time could be saved. First the "drug sheets" were redesigned for easier reference by the nurses. Then instead of a fixed cupboard a locked cupboard was attached to a trolley. When not in use the trolley was padlocked to a ward fixture. The medicine glass employed was changed over to metric dose only. The study was carried out at the London Hospital and a number of other hospitals have adopted the scheme and others are currently experimenting with it.

A PHARMACIST'S ANTHOLOGY NEVER SPOKE ABOUT SHOP

From "Pendennis" by W. M. Thackeray

It takes much time and careful saving for a provincial doctor, whose gains are not very large, to lay by enough money wherewith to purchase a house and land; but beside's our friend's own frugality and prudence, fortune aided him considerably in his endeavour, and brought him to the point which he so panted to attain. He laid out some money very advantageously in the purchase of a house and small estate close upon the village of Clavering before mentioned. A lucky purchase which he had made of shares in a copper-mine added very considerably to his wealth, and he realised with great prudence while this mine was still at its full vogue. Finally, he sold his business, at Bath, to Mr. Parkins, for a handsome sum of ready money, and for an annuity to be paid to him during a certain number of years after he had for ever retired from the handling of the mortar and pestle.

Arthur Pendennis, his son, was eight years old at the time of this event, so that it is no wonder that the lad, who left Bath and the surgery so young, should forget the existence of such a place almost entirely, and that his father's hand had ever been dirtied by the compounding of odious pills, or the preparation of filthy plasters. The old man never spoke about the shop himself, never alluded to it; called in the medical practitioner of Clavering to attend his family; sunk the black breeches and trousers altogether; attended market and sessions, and wore a bottle-green coat and brass buttons with drab gaiters, just as if he had been an English gentleman all his life.

LONG-SERVICE AWARDS FOR 137

And last family link severed after five generations of Maws

AT a special celebration dinner in London on December 12 no less than 137 members of the staff of Maws Pharmacy Supplies, Ltd., Barnet, Herts, received long-service awards. Their continuous employment with the company totalled 1,890 years.

Three among them, having completed fifty years' service, will have their names inscribed with the seventy-seven already on the company's long-service honours board at Barnet. They are Messrs. W. J. Brooks (chief cashier); R. F. Vice (section head in accounts department); and L. H. Few (quality-control officer).

Twenty awards went to staff members with twenty years' service. Among them was the company's present managing director, Mr. Denys Maw, great grandson of the founder, and the last remaining member of the family to be associated with the business. Mr. Maw is retiring from the company on December 31. At the dinner he said that after twenty years at the helm, he felt he had earned "a little peace and quiet." From the beginning of 1969 Mr. D. W. Harris, the company's general manager, will become responsible for its overall management.

Remainder of the 137 awards were for ten years' service. The recipients included Messrs. D. W. Harris (general manager), George Cowan (chief accountant and secretary), W. D. Cockburn (chief buyer), Malcolm Sanderson (export manager), J. P. Currie (home sales manager) and A. L. S. Rich (brand manager, nursery products).

Founder and Followers

The business was founded in 1807 by Lincolnshire farmer George Maw, who came to London in 1807 to set up in business as a druggist. Two sons, John and Solomon, joined him. Third generation came in with Charles, son of Solomon. Charles it was who, in expanding the business, also gave it the distinctive character that came to be known as "Maws trade." Four of Charles Maw's sons converted it into a company in 1917. For over 100 years the premises, rebuilt in 1861, were at Aldersgate Street, in the City of London, and when the transfer was made to Barnet the new factory was given the name Aldersgate Works. Until 1939 the London premises were concerned solely with manufacture. In that year the warehouse and offices were transferred to the Barnet site and in 1965 an additional warehouse was opened at Preston, Lancs. In 1959 the company became a wholly owned subsidiary of the Norcros Group of Companies. In a reorganisation in 1964 a new company, Maws Pharmacy Supplies, Ltd., became responsible for marketing all Maws branded goods and other products sold at pharmacies and a new Felstead Manufacturing Co. became responsible for manufacture.

of the Pharmaceutical Society), in a tribute to the city, said "We have become accustomed at the Society's headquarters to rely on support from the East Riding when the going is rough and we have never been disappointed." Hull had a pharmaceutical reputation second to none, and Hull men who in 1841 had helped to found the Pharmaceutical Society included those well known names Baynes Broomhead, Garton and Lofthouse.

Mr. Howells also paid a tribute to Mr. and Mrs. E. Brocklehurst of Hull who had recently been made Fellows of the Society. They were, he said, "possibly the most famous partnership in pharmacy today."

MR. F. N. HARRISON (chairman, Hull Branch of the Society and president of the Association) said in thanking Mr. Howells that at the turn of the century chemists had been open for eighty hours a week and in 1906 twenty-four chemists petitioned for shorter hours—but "only a few less."

GLASS CONTAINER MAKER EXPANDS

Wheatley factory a symbol of confidence in the future

"OUR aim is to give our customers a better buy, to keep the glass industry in the forefront of packaging, and to prosper and expand accordingly," Mr. A. Bailey (marketing director, Rockware Glass, Ltd.) said on December 4. He was explaining the background to the recent opening of his company's new factory for glass container manufacture at Wheatley, Doncaster, — "a symbol," he said, "of our growth and confidence in the future."

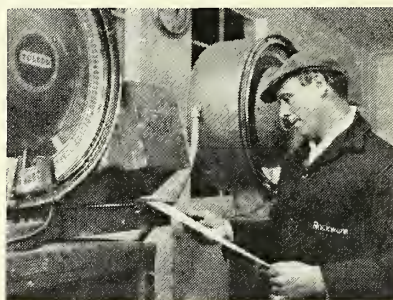

In the past three years the Rockware group has increased three times in size with an annual turnover of approximately £21 m. — one-third of the glass container market. It has nine glass factories, producing nearly 5,000,000 containers a day, among them milk bottles, wine or spirit bottles, cosmetic containers and baby-food jars. The company has pioneered the development of "one-trip" bottles.

Why the Factory was Built

Reason for a new factory at Doncaster was the fact that Pilkington Bros., Ltd., with whom Rockware Glass have shared a factory site at Kirk Sandall, Doncaster, since 1934, were unable to continue to provide mixed raw materials for the Rockware furnaces, or producer gas for firing the furnaces. A new development was therefore started a mile away on an empty site. Comparison of the old and new factories (both are in operation because plant is being transferred as building progresses) shows that every advantage has been taken of the opportunity created.

A feature of the new factory is the batch plant, the only one of its kind

The exercise of a proper professional discretion would assume an even greater importance as medicines became more effective—and more dangerous to the uninformed.

Check-weighing in the fully automatic batch house. Weighing is accurate to 1 lb. in 10,000. The batchhouse (raw materials and mixing plant) is the only one of its kind outside North America.

outside North America. It comprises a 158-ft. concrete tower which houses, in descending order, storage bins for raw materials, weigh hopper and mixers. The whole weighing and mixing process, intake of raw materials and forwarding of the batches to the furnaces, is controlled by programmed electronic equipment which requires little human supervision except to decide whether to accept or reject slight intolerances in a single batch.

Two oil-fired furnaces are at present in operation, each originally designed to melt 125 tons of glass a day. Current building will provide room for the third and space already exists for provision of a fourth as necessary. From the furnaces, glass is taken via "forehearth" (canals) into the feeder, a machine delivering "gobs" of molten glass to the bottle-forming machine. After forming, bottles are passed through annealing kilns known as lehrs—extra wide lehrs have been installed to allow for the future development of faster production rates and for larger containers.

Space Requirement

A major reason for Rockware's decision to build a new plant instead of developing the old, was the space required for the equipment for automatic inspection of glass containers. This is a most important step, particularly for infant food containers which are checked for cracks, wavy tops (which would prevent vacuum sealing) and foreign matter—such as glass fragments. Packing is initially being undertaken by hand but it is planned that the job will eventually be carried out by machinery. A final process for some containers is ceramic labelling and equipment will be installed at the end of the production line in the new plant as a continuous process.

POISONING BY PARAQUAT

Advice on treatment

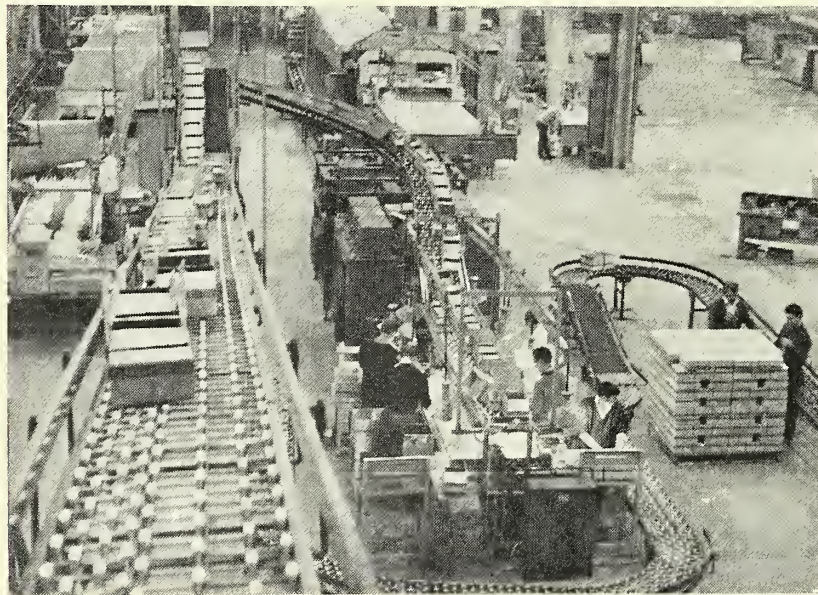

Statement published at the request of Dr. Roy Goulding (National Poisons Information Service).

ATTENTION has been attracted recently to some alarming cases of acute poisoning from the herbicide paraquat, now extensively used in agriculture and horticulture. Despite the large quantities which have been handled, no misadventure seems to have befallen anyone using the material in the field so long as the relatively simple recommendations were adhered to.

"A few people, nevertheless, have swallowed paraquat with suicidal intent. A few more have ingested it by accident, nearly always because the commercial concentrate has been transferred to an inappropriate and improperly labelled container. In those circumstances serious illness has followed the taking of relatively small quantities of the paraquat liquid. Grave and often fatal lung changes have developed some days later. Once those have become established, there is apparently no effective method of treatment.

Whenever paraquat is known to have been swallowed, therefore, immediate corrective action is essential. Vomiting should be induced at once, if it has not already occurred, and should be followed as soon as possible by gastric lavage. The speed with which the stomach is emptied is, of course, the most important life-saving measure, and if facilities for lavage are not immediately available, further vomiting should be induced by giving large volumes of water to drink. There is reason to believe that the prompt administration of a bentonite suspension by mouth may absorb the chemical and consequently impair its systemic absorption. Whenever paraquat poisoning is likely to occur, therefore, it may be expedient to have readily to hand the materials for preparing such a suspension so that it can be given after gastric lavage. A volume of at least 200-300 mil. of the suspension should be administered by the lavage tube and an additional quantity swallowed after the tube is withdrawn."

*To prepare the suspension, 70 gm. bentonite are mixed with 100 mil. of glycerin and made up to a litre with water. If possible, the material should be sterilised to eliminate any possible hazard from the presence of bacterial spores.

Pharmacy in the United States

"NO SODA FOUNTAINS OUTSIDE NEW YORK" SAYS LEEDS CHEMIST

"OUTSIDE of New York City I never saw a pharmacy with either a soda fountain or a sandwich bar," Mr. MAXWELL GORDON told members of Leeds Branch of the Pharmaceutical Society recently. "The modern attitude is that such things are unprofessional and bad for pharmacy's image."

Mr. Gordon was describing a recent visit that combined a family reunion with observation on how pharmacy was carried on in the United States. He had wanted to find out how American pharmacists were standing up to price cutting, widened distribution, competition from supermarkets and chain-store pharmacies and a new difficulty: the cut-price pharmacy. With no National Health Service to bolster them, with present trends in prescribing, and with the high cost of drugs, how were they able to remain in business without increasing sales of non-pharmaceutical goods? What were their plans for the future? Mr. Gordon said he had visited pharmacies in the States of Connecticut (principally), Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York.

Qualifying in U.S. took five years at college after high school, then one year of post-graduate training, leading, after registration, to a licence to practise with the title A.Ph.A. A specialist organisation catered for those licensed pharmacists who conducted "dispensing only" pharmacies—the A.C.A. (American College of Apothecaries), which defined its policy as, "Purity of practice limited to dispensing and consultation with G.P.V." The American Pharmaceutical Association had the same functions but plus surgical and convalescent equipment and retail business. The N.A.R.D. (National Association of Retail Druggists) was akin to the National Pharmaceutical Union in Britain. Its basis was to keep dispensing within private-enterprise pharmacy, and it made constant attempts to have laws for the protection of retailers passed at both State and Federal levels.

Each State had its own pharmacy board and council, and each branch and State had a "grievance committee," whose task was to keep members' behaviour and practice in line. A member who had committed a misdemeanour might be called before the local grievance committee and referred from there, if necessary, to the State Board which, like the Statutory Committee in Britain, had disciplinary functions.

At State Level First

Organisation was similar to that in Britain, except that each State had its own head committee, conference, etc., before the Federal level was reached. Inspection of pharmacies was undertaken by the State Pharmacy Commission and, whilst there was no legal limitation of pharmacies, the permission of the State authority (Department of Consumer Protection, pharmacy division) was needed before a pharmacy could be opened. Permission was apparently based on the criteria of hygiene, dispensary facilities and store safety and not on the needs of the public in respect of service required.

American pharmacists, however, did not rest upon their status as professional men, but tried to put pressure upon the American Manufacturing Association, and other bodies. They indirectly entered politics by having paid lobbyists in both Congress and the State Legislatures. There was a definite attempt to restrict the type of goods sold; some keeping to "traditional" goods, others adding greetings cards—a profitable relic of the past which the public had come to expect in the drug store. Some pharmacists still sold wines, spirits, chocolates, stationery, magazines, cigarettes and newspapers. Cigarettes were disappearing from drug stores owing to a statement by the Connecticut Pharmacy Board that licensed pharmacists considered them a hazard to health. In a rural pharmacy by the sea he had found beach goods and toys, "but the dispensary was still very much the focal point."

Not So Good

The drug store that had most upset him was a Rexall-Liggett chain store branch. The chain was the nearest thing to Boots, Ltd., in that it was country-wide, "but I wouldn't insult Boots by further comparison." It had been a little like a second-hand marine store, with clothes hanging round the fixtures, and he had had to fight his way through a mass of stands, clothes and hardware, etc., to find the dispensary hidden away in a distant corner. A neighbourhood or suburban pharmacy he had visited—one of six serving a 20,000 population area—dispensed an average of 2,000 scripts a month. No pharmacy he had seen employed less than two qualified persons, who were not on duty together, as the closing hour was usually 9 p.m., except in New York, where it could be even after midnight. The pharmacists worked a rota, and had three or four days off at once. All community drug stores gave a delivery service. Window displays were poor, though some did show invalid chairs and surgical equipment. Few pharmacies he had visited sold films, and D. and P. was now the prerogative of postal specialists.

The modern pharmacies were fully carpeted and the general layout prominently featured an open dispensary—in some instances raised so that the pharmacist was visible from all points. Fixtures were in aisles leading to the dispensary, and all goods were displayed at eye level. Little was on view in the dispensary except the pharmacists' certificates and some pharmaceutical ornaments. All drugs were kept in pull-out cupboards.

He had been amazed at finding two pharmacies in "doctor blocks." Neither of the pharmacies had a shop window and from the outside it was impossible to know they existed. One had a raised dispensary in the centre, with fixtures radiating like the spokes on a wheel. When, at the second, he had questioned the value of selling when the public might be unaware of the shop, he had been told the turnover of goods—mainly high quality cosmetics—was £14,000. All doctors used a standard prescription form, and prescriptions, regardless of their content, were always retained by the pharmacy. Scripts were filed and no book entries were necessary. Labels must carry the prescribed name, and all were typed. Dispensing and the presentation of services in the pharmacy was of a high standard. Wholesaling services were not so good as in Britain. Prescriptions were priced on the basis $1.25 (10s.) for service plus an oncost of 33½ per cent. on standard packs. Cut-price pharmacies charged 75 cents for service plus 25 per cent. oncost. They were mainly in the pharmacy departments of large stores. There were two socialised medical schemes, both constantly growing, and private pharmacists had arrangements with them. In Medicaire, which covered the over 65's, the charge was 75 cents plus 25 per cent. oncost on manufacturers' standard prices. The "Blue Cross" scheme had started as a service for persons discharged from hospital but was now becoming more comprehensive. Items were charged at $2 (16s. 5d.) each, with no oncost, but with manufacturers' list prices paid for ingredients. Bulk buying could therefore create a hidden profit! Discussions (particularly with a member of the Connecticut State Pharmacy Board) had shown that American pharmacists were akin to those in Britain, with shortages of qualified staff even more acute because of the late closing times. He had been given some evidence of a desire to work together in the case of pharmacists within a twenty-mile radius combining to standardise their advertisements in the telephone directory.

More Than Survival

Despite all competition, he had been told, pharmacy had more than survived—it had progressed. The answer to competition had been given as good returns from professional service; greater specialisation; modernisation; service; a growing awareness of the need for professional cohesion and collective action; and growth of socialised medical schemes. It had early been realised that co-operation with the large supermarkets and cut-price stores was impossible, and goods displayed in cut-price stores were never on show in pharmacies. Only restricted lines, specialised cosmetics and perfumery were displayed.

PACKAGING NOTES

Aerosol Service.—Midland Aerosols, Ltd., Dominion Works, Great Brick-kiln Street, Wolverhampton, offer the experience of their technical team in solving aerosol filling problems.

Dispensary Vials at Less Cost.—A price reduction of approximately 20 per cent. on Holpot dispensary vials is announced by Holpak, Ltd., Bessemer Road, Welwyn Garden City, Herts. Recommended prices (per 100) currently applicable are 9s. 6d. for 18 c.c., 10s. 8d. for 33 c.c. and 14s. 4d. for 62 c.c. The reduction has been made possible by the use of high-output injection-blow moulding machinery. Average cost of prescription packaging will be less than 1.4d. per prescription when all three sizes are used, a saving of 0.5d. on National Health Service container allowance, say the makers.

Polystyrene Tablet Bottles in Cabinet.—With the introduction of Coplastic tablet bottles, say Macdonald of Manchester, Portland Mill, Ashton-under-Lyne, Lancs, a further important step has been taken in tidying all dispensing aids into Certor cabinets. Coplastic bottles are traditional in shape; identical with glass to the eye, but only one sixth of the weight; moulded in break-resistant polystyrene; available in clear and amber; they cost less than glass, and are immediately available from twelve regional depôts.

Office Move for "Unique" Service.—The head office and showroom of Motivity has been transferred to Windmill Road, Hampton Hill, Middlesex (telephone: 01-979 6277). A range of services described as "unique" is offered, ranging from packing, collating, glueing, folding, punching, checking, banding, stapling and mailing, to assembly of advertising novelties, displays and simple mechanical and electrical items — anything in fact that can be handled by extensive hand-labour.

Packing Case of New Type.—The Trackell unit, now being marketed by M.F.R. (Sales), Ltd., The Stocks, Cosgrove, Wolverton, Bucks, is described as a new type of packing case of appeal to manufacturers of valuable or fragile articles. Supplied in a "knocked down" condition and occupying about one tenth the space of a normal crate, its interlocking side sections have provision for the location of integral layers, partitions and divisions. It is easily assembled by unskilled labour with only a screwdriver or spanner. Once a base plan has been established, the height can be varied by adding extra side sections. After use, the case is not only easy to return, but may be used for internal transport, storage or display cabinets.

Additions to PVC Stock Range.—Bakelite Xylonite, Ltd., Cascelloid Division, P.O. Box 103, Abbey Lane, Leicester, LE4 0DW, have added 300-c.c. and 500-c.c. pvc bottles, both designed to meet the requirements of the cosmetic and toiletry industries, to their range of stock containers. The bottles are blow moulded in impact-modified pvc for clarity and resistance to breakage. A choice of closures is available, the 300-c.c. being fitted with a reverse tapered urea cap or a straight fluted urea cap and the 500-c.c. having a pierceable urea flower pot cap or non-pierceable polystyrene flower pot cap. Decoration can be effected by the silk screen process or paper labelling, the 300-c.c. bottle having a recessed panel to accommodate the latter.

Decimal/Sterling Price Marking.—The Tickopres retail division of Norprint, Ltd., Boston, Lines., have developed further their two hand-held price-marking machines, the Tickoply S W Mini and the S W Tot, so as to accommodate both the sterling and the decimal coinage systems. With the SW Mini the price is printed on a self-adhesive label and applied to the product in one easy stroking action. On the SW Tot self-adhesive labels are printed in a continuous strip by depressing a handle, leaving the machine free for use elsewhere while the strip is being applied to products. Both machines are set by means of dials and may be had in either six or eight-wheel version. Sterling or decimal prices are printed by turning the dial to the appropriate digits. Both the new and established machines use the same size wavy-shaped labels, available in various colours, and with preprinted company name, symbol or trade mark at the head.

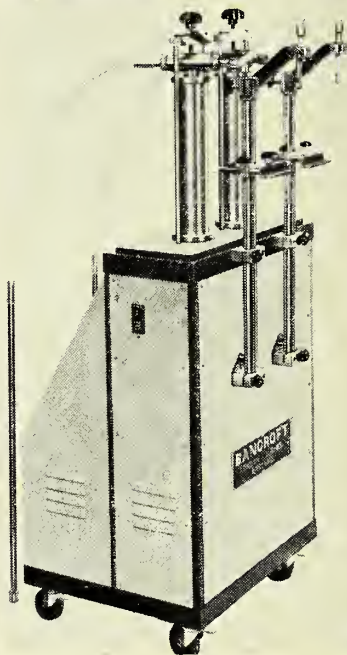

Price-marking Kit.—Dymo, Ltd., Astronaut House, Hounslow Road, Feltham, Middlesex, have extended their range to include a free-standing price marker kit containing the Dymo M-6 Labelmaker, one vertical character wheel, five rolls of coloured vinyl tape, and twenty-five each of 2-in. and 4-in. free-standing price markers. The markers are designed to display neatly either $\frac{1}{4}$ -in., $\frac{1}{2}$ -in. or—where larger tools are available— $\frac{3}{4}$ -in. tape. The M-6 embosses on $\frac{1}{4}$ -in. or $\frac{1}{2}$ -in. tape, in "king size" or vertical characters with wide or narrow spacing. The system is claimed specially suited to the needs of chemists.

Carton Stitcher.—Many completely new ideas are understood to be incorporated in a new carton stapler introduced by Lawtons Industrial, Ltd., 60 Vauxhall Road, Liverpool, 3. Most important is a counter-balanced staple feeder system that eliminates feeder springs and the breakdowns and jams that they cause. An extra long magazine fitted as standard reduces loading time by 50 per cent. The light, portable machine is claimed "a real blessing" for female operators. It operates with three sizes of staple and caters for all types and sizes of carton up to 3 ft. deep. The machine is easily converted to a stitcher.

Silicone-treated Tape.—A new self-adhesive Kraft tape, Reditape, is the latest addition to the range of Bulldog brand gummed sealing tapes manufactured by Smith & McLaurin, Ltd., Cartside Mills, Millikenpark, Renfrewshire. Made of pure Kraft, and silicone-release-treated on one side, with self-adhesive coating on the reverse, Reditape is available in various widths in 72-yd. coils on 3-in. cores for easy application. It has a good break resistance and extra strength for heavy duty packaging. Its silicone barrier provides protection against moisture penetration and the tape is suitable for ambient and deep-freeze conditions.

Semi-automatic Volumetric Filler.—A completely self-contained, free standing, hydraulically operated, semi-automatic volumetric filling machine, designed for all types of free-flowing liquids or creams compatible with F.M.B. quality stainless steel is offered by Bancroft Fillers and Appliances, Ltd., 33 High Street, London, S.E.25. The machine is capable of filling any sort of container (even a plastic bag) to an accuracy of better than 0.5 per cent. in quantities of from just under 1 fl. oz. up to 1 gal., with only one cycle of the machine. Each time the foot pedal is depressed, one full metered shot is immediately dispensed from each cylinder in use. It is not possible to dispense half a shot. Outputs from the range can be up to 2,400 bottles per hour, depending on the size of container and the type of product.

TRADE REPORT

The prices given are those obtained by importers or manufacturers for bulk quantities or original packages. Various charges have to be added whereby values are augmented before wholesale dealers receive the goods into stock.

LONDON, DECEMBER 18: The markets are ending the year on the same dull note that has pervaded throughout 1968. Nevertheless most prices have finished considerably above the levels ruling in December 1967—mostly because of scarcity of stocks rather than interest in the items. During the past week COCHINEAL was virtually unobtainable; both grades of Canary Isles were being offered for shipment at peak levels but Peruvian was unobtainable on the spot and for shipment. Brazilian MENTHOL was sixpence per lb. lower for shipment, spot was unchanged and so too was the Chinese variety. KARAYA GUM rates again leaped forward, spot being 55s. per cwt. up on previous week. ACACIA was slightly down for shipment. TURMERIC was firmer as end-of-season stocks ran short. Costa Rican IPECACUANHA was easier and Seychelles CINNAMON BARK was down 10s. per cwt. for shipment. Tinned hand-picked SENNA PODS were down twopence per lb. on the spot. Shipment of PODS and LEAVES from the port of Tuticorin during November were as follows:

	U.K. Tons	U.S. Tons	Europe Tons
SENNA
LEAVES	4	76	65
PODS	—	—	49

In ESSENTIAL OILS, Chinese and Brazilian PEPPERMINT were lower by a few pence per lb. The forward rates for Ceylon CITRONELLA and Madagascar CLOVE LEAF advanced by twopence and threepence per lb. respectively.

A report from Iran states that the Government there has decided to lift a 12-year ban on the cultivation of OPIUM. The move, it adds, was designed to stop smuggling of the drug into the country from Afghanistan and Turkey, payment for which was proving a drain on the country's reserves.

Devices for separating and handling stoppering or capping capsules. Trefimetaux, 1,140,402.

Therapeutic compositions. S. L. Santorelli, 1,140,443.

Phenothiazine derivatives. Rhone-Poulenc, S.A., 1,140,471.

Method of obtaining sorbitol. Leningradsky Nauchno-Issledovatel'skiy Institut Antibiotikov, 1,140,477.

Isopropanolamine derivatives and their production. Hassle Apotekare Paul Nordstroms Fabriker, A.B., 1,140,508.

Isolation of tetracycline from a fermentation broth. A. P. Da Luz, 1,140,517.

Silicone wax cosmetic compositions. Dow Corning Corporation, 1,140,536.

Pharmaceutical compositions suitable for use in microcirculation and in the treatment of senility. Unimed, Inc., 1,140,540.

Steroid cycloborate complexes. E. R. Squibb & Sons, Inc., 1,140,543.

Method for producing L-glutamic acid. Takeda Chemical Industries, Ltd., 1,140,544.

17a-Cyanoethynyl-steroids. E. Merck, A.G., 1,140,642.

Lincomycin derivatives. Upjohn Co., 1,140,663.

Peptides having an adrenocorticotrophic hormone action and process for their manufacture. CIBA, Ltd., 1,140,665.

1,5-Methanobenzodiazocine derivatives and preparation thereof. Sterling Drug, Inc., 1,140,704.

Organo-phosphorous compounds and pesticidal compositions containing the same. Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., 1,140,721.

3,4-Difluorophenyl compounds. Pfizer, Ltd., 1,140,754.

Vaccine and its preparation. Merck & Co., Inc., 1,140,766.

Needle for surgical operations. Kuntsevsky Igolnoplatinny Zavod Imeni Kim, 1,140,790.

Medicine for the treatment of diseases connected with inflammatory processes. Ferlux, 1,140,800.

Fermentative preparation of L-ornithine. Kyowa Hakko Kogyo, K.K., 1,140,827.

Lincomycin derivatives. Upjohn Co., 1,140,833.

Isopropanolamine derivatives, their preparation, and pharmaceutical compositions containing them. Hassle Apotekare Paul Nordstroms Fabriker, A.B., 1,140,860.

Steroid spirodiazirines and diaziridines. Nova Therapeutisk Laboratorium, A/S, 1,140,869.

Tetracycline. Ankerfarm, S.p.A., 1,140,871.

6-Demethyl tetracyclines. Ankerfarm, S.p.A., 1,140,872.

Therapeutic massage assembly. Niagara Therapy Mfg. Corporation, 1,140,931.

Potential of biocidal activity of epoxides. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co., 1,140,947.

Preparations for combating ectoparasites. CIBA, Ltd., 1,140,965.

Carbamic acid esters and pesticidal preparations containing them. CIBA, Ltd., 1,140,974.

Process for preparing aminopenicillins. Beecham Group, Ltd., 1,140,975.

Substituted nitriles and pesticidal preparations containing them. CIBA, Ltd., 1,140,979.

Orthopaedic appliances. Yardley Enterprises, Inc., 1,141,095.

Steroidal compounds and process for the preparation thereof. G. D. Searle & Co., 1,141,097.

Halogenated ether useful as an inhalation anaesthetic. Allied Chemical Corporation, 1,141,099.

Determination of chorionic gonadotropin. Unimed, Inc., 1,141,100.

British patent specifications relating to the above will be obtainable (price 4s. 6d. each) from the Patents Office, 25 Southampton Buildings, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.2, from January 22.

What doctors are reading about developments in drugs and treatments

CONFIRMATION has been obtained by workers at the West Middlesex Hospital that aspirin is a factor in precipitating overt haemorrhage in acute and chronic peptic ulcers. They have also shown that the compound is an important cause of bleeding from the stomach or duodenum, perhaps from both, in the absence of a chronic peptic ulcer. Study of the incidence of aspirin ingestion during the week preceding overt gastroduodenal bleeding in 582 patients revealed a positive aspirin history in 80 per cent. of patients with acute gastric lesions. Aspirin had also been taken by 63 per cent. of those in whom no lesion was found, in 52 per cent. of those with a chronic duodenal ulcer and in 49 per cent. of patients with a chronic gastric ulcer. A control series of patients without bleeding admitted to the wards showed an incidence of aspirin ingestion of 32 per cent. (B.M.J., December 14, p. 661).

In another paper on aspirin and gastrointestinal bleeding, workers at the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, Sydney, Australia, report having found that alcohol may accentuate the blood loss associated with unbuffered aspirin ingestion. Their studies, in healthy male volunteers, showed that alcohol given alone did not cause bleeding, but in the same dosage it increased aspirin-induced foecal blood loss (as measured by means of chromium-51-labelled red blood cells). Although the mechanism was not studied, it is suggested that the increased bleeding resulted from a lowered pH of the gastric contents (alcohol stimulates gastric acid secretion) during the period that aspirin was in the stomach (B.M.J., December 14, p. 664).

RIJAMPICIN provides an alternative means of single-session therapy in gonorrhoea for patients in whom penicillin is contraindicated, according to a report from St. Mary's Hospital, London. The compound is semi-synthetic antibiotic of the rijamycin group and was supplied by CIBA Laboratories, Ltd., and Lepetit Pharmaceuticals, Ltd. (B.M.J., December 14, p. 681).

BECAUSE continuous ingestion of substantial amounts of iodine may impair thyroid function and affect thyroid-function tests, a doctor in Oslo, Norway, suggests consideration should be given to whether marketing and promoting the sale of clioquinol and other iodoquinolines is unethical, and whether it endangers the health of large groups of the population. "Although these substances are of little or no value in 'tourists' diarrhoea,' they seem to be recommended by every guide in every chartered flight to the Mediterranean countries" (Lancet, December 14, p. 1301).

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

The Chemist's Dictionary of Medical Terms

The eighth edition, now published, has had a number of new terms added and some definitions revised in the light of medical developments. More than ever the Dictionary, prepared primarily for pharmacists, is invaluable, indispensable even, to all others who are engaged in the manufacture, sale or use of medicinal products. Eighth Edition 1967. 292 pp. 35s.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

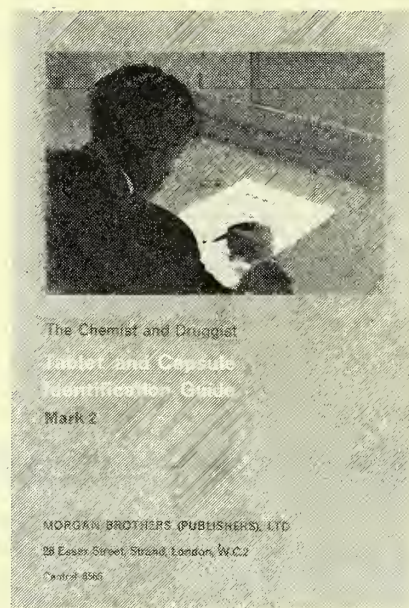

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

AMENDMENTS AND ADDITIONS TO KEY TO SUPPLIERS

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

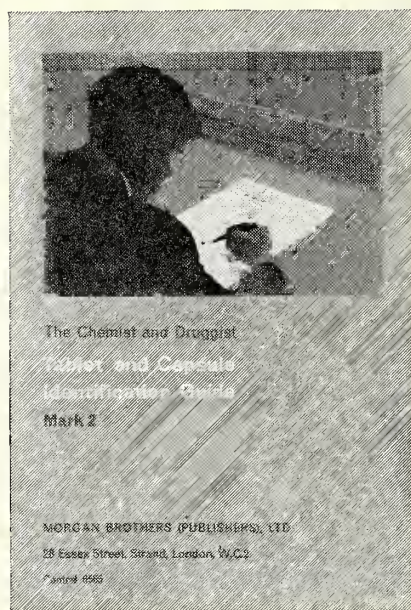

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

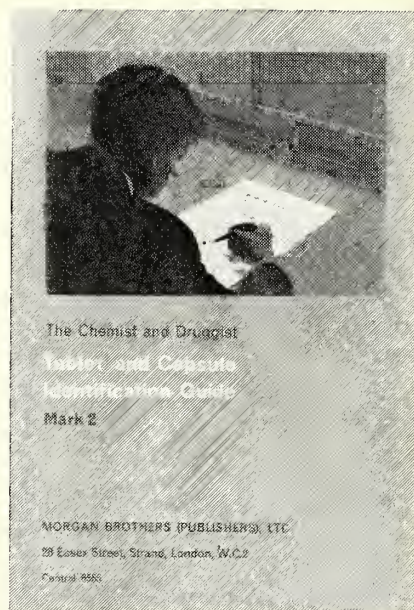

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

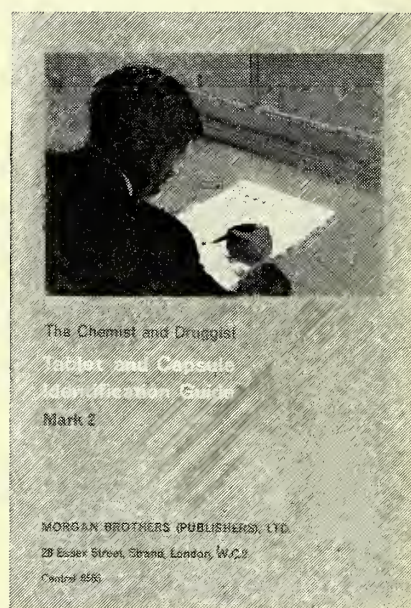

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

THIS WEEK'S CHANGES

Prices are given in the sequence Trade Price per Doz.; Purchase Tax per Doz.; Retail Price. Bold upright figures (2 9) in the retail price column indicate that the price is subject to resale price maintenance; italic figures (2 9) that it is recommended by the manufacturers; and light upright figures (2 9) that it is "notional" as a guide to the retailer in determining his own retail price.

TO MANUFACTURERS WHO HAVE NOT YET NOTIFIED THEIR NEW TAX-INCLUSIVE RETAIL PRICES

Your last chance this year!

The next issue of the CHEMIST AND DRUGGIST will bear the date line December 21/28 and there will be no other issue in 1968. In order for new prices to appear next week the information needs to be in the hands of the Editor by Tuesday morning, December 17.

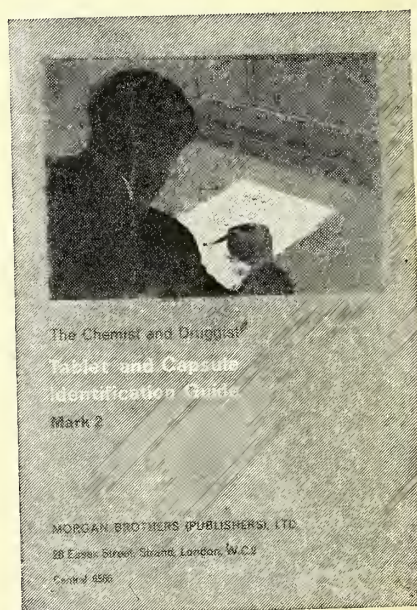

IF YOU NEED TO KNOW

WHAT TABLET THIS IS..

HERE IS YOUR GUIDE

The Guide, which has had an enthusiastic reception, deals with the identifiable products - 1,750 in all - of 180 manufacturers, taking into account colour, shape, size and manufacturers' markings. From colour grid numbers the user is led to tables of detailed information that narrow down the possibilities to the ultimate - usually an individual tablet. Alphabetical cross-references contribute to ease and speed in use.

The C. & D. feature "Guide to New Medicaments" keeps the Guide up to date by giving details of new products and changes in appearance.
